NEWS BRIEFS

Rooney Charges Smear Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Pa., charged Friday that "right-wing renegades" have begun a smear campaign against him by circulating unsigned cartoons throughout his congressional district.

The cartoons, he said, purport to show Russian Premier Khrushchev praising Rooney for his vote to sell U.S. wheat to Russia.

"Aside from the fact that this effort to smear anyone who disagrees with them as a Commie is totally alien to the American system of fair play and decency in political campaigning," Rooney said, "the document itself is illegal and a violation of federal statutes governing political action."

Rooney said, however, that he planned no prosecution of persons behind "this scurrilous and contemptible attack upon my patriotism."

No Signs Of Red Military

WASHINGTON (AP) — High U.S. sources said Friday night there still have been no signs of a Communist military response to the U.S. retaliation against North Vietnamese naval bases. They said this means that chances are diminishing that the Reds will widen the war.

Washington has watched closely for any reaction from the Communist camp, particularly Peking, to the Aug. 4 U.S. strike at North Vietnamese bases that sent PT boats out to attack U.S. destroyers.

WWS Grounded At Allentown

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A twin-engine Cessna aircraft carrying Gov. William W. Scranton and four other persons developed engine trouble Friday night and was forced to land under alert conditions at the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton airport. The plane made a smooth landing.

The plane, piloted by Charles Dwight of Harrisburg, was carrying the governor from Philadelphia to Scranton where he has an estate. Also aboard was Craig Truax, Republican state chairman.

Scott To Back Goldwater

HARRISBURG (AP) — U.S. Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., who headed Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton's unsuccessful bid for the Republican presidential nomination, said Friday he will support the nominee, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Scott, who is seeking reelection to a second term in November, had said Thursday night in Philadelphia that he would support the entire Republican ticket, but he did not mention any names. Friday marked the first time he mentioned Goldwater by name.

Musmanno Petition Denied

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The State Supreme Court denied a petition Friday by Justice Michael A. Musmanno for reconsideration of the court's ruling invalidating "wrong line" votes cast in the April 28 primary.

Abraham E. Freedman, Musmanno's counsel, said he would appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. Freedman also filed a letter in the prothonotary office at Harrisburg questioning the manner in which the petition was denied.

Johnson At Texas Home

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson landed by plane at his ranch Friday night from Washington to spend the weekend.

He was accompanied by Mrs. Johnson and their older daughter, Lynda. Their 10-place Jet Star plane left Andrews Air Force Base near Washington at 6.29 p.m.

Market Makes Sizable Recovery

NEW YORK (AP) — Fear of a broadening international crisis subsided in Wall Street Friday and the stock market made a sizable recovery of Thursday's losses.

Volume was 3.19 million shares compared with 3.94 million Thursday.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 5.76 to 829.16.

Martial Law Set

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Virtual martial law gripped South Viet Nam Friday night by a decree of Premier Nguyen Khanh aimed at strengthening the fight against communism. Death was threatened for all terrorists and saboteurs, even black market speculators.

Danger Of Attack

With the danger of an attack from the north evidently ebbing, Khanh proclaimed a state of emergency across a land where U.S. and South Vietnamese military forces have been in a state of alert all week.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor talked to Khanh before the decree was made public. The spokesman said it was not proper for the United States to comment on the decree because it was an internal matter, but if results included increased mobilization and helped in prosecution of the war, "then it would be all for the good."

Strong Forces

While strong South Vietnamese and American forces kept watch on Communist North Viet Nam's frontier, the spokesman implied the United States feels the American warplane squadrons already rushed in are adequate for the present.

"What we have here now is what we think we need now," he said. "If the situation changes, then it will depend on developments."

Negro's Killers Arrested

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Four men, identified by the FBI as Ku Klux Klansmen, were named Friday in state warrants charging murder after their arrest by federal agents investigating the shotgun slaying of a Washington, D.C., Negro educator.

The arrest of the four Thursday was announced in Washington by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

$25,000 Bond

U.S. Commissioner Giriard Hawkins held the four men under $25,000 bond each after a hearing on federal charges brought under the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Hawkins said one of the four, James S. Lackey, 28, a gas station attendant, admitted complicity in the slaying of Lemuel Penn and implicated the other three.

The others held are Herbert Guest, 37, garage operator; Cecil William Myers, 25, laborer, and Joseph Howard Sims, 41, a machinist, all of Athens.

Goldwater Denounces Ku Klux Klan

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — "We don't want the backing of the Ku Klux Klan, and I don't think we're going to get it," says Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee. "It's been a Democratic organization all its history."

Goldwater made the statement Thursday in answer to a question during a news conference following a meeting with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"I want the support of anybody in this country who hasn't advocated the violent overthrow of the government, or who hasn't acted in a violent way against law and order," Goldwater said.

S-burg Vet Raps Vietnamese GI

By Gil Murray
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — An Air Force veteran from Stroudsburg, who just returned from a tour of duty in Viet Nam, said yesterday, "We will never win war unless we start using our manpower. We just can't do it with the South Vietnamese soldier."

Ronald Eppley of 509 Main St., who recently returned from a seven month tour of duty in Viet Nam, is caustic and bitter about the caliber of fighting man the Vietnamese are sending against the Viet Cong.

Eppley, a veteran of 15 years service with both the Army and Air Force, was wounded by shrapnel from a hand grenade while he was flying in a helicopter on a mission to rescue downed American flyers.

Eppley qualifies as an expert on "contained warfare." In addition to being wounded in Viet Nam, the local veteran was wounded three times during the Korean conflict.

"Americans are doing a lot more than they are supposed to be doing in Viet Nam. Everybody over there is supposed to be an advisor in some capacity. But it ends up that we have to do all the fighting for them," Eppley said bitterly.

Donald Eppley

Threaten At Gun Point

"What would you think," he continued, "if you had to threaten a soldier with a rifle before he would get out of helicopter to fight for his country."

Eppley said if we use our manpower we can win the war. "It will be costly," he cautioned, "we are told it will take 20 or 30 of our men to kill one of the Communist Viet Cong. I don't think we have a choice, however. We just can't win the war using the Vietnamese."

Eppley said he flew missions over the jungle terrain of Viet Nam as a machine gunner on a helicopter. He described the north and south in Viet Nam as resembling the rural south and industrialized north in this country.

"The ruler of North Viet Nam wants to come in and take over all the rice paddies in the south. In my opinion, this is what started this war," he remarked.

When asked why the Viet Cong went after the tough American Seventh Fleet, he said:

"Just as I was about to leave the prime minister of South Viet Nam, Col. Nguyen Khanh, got some medium bombers from the U. S. and started sending paratroopers into the north.

"This means the Vietnamese were ready to take the offensive. The north has no air force at all. They have to depend on Red China.

Put Pressure On

"When the south started dropping paratroopers in the north it started to put the pressure on. The paratroopers were hitting oil dumps and making costly raids. The north had to do something to take the pressure off."

In summing up the Vietnamese, he said, "They just won't fight. They stop work at noon and go home and sleep for two hours and then come back. How are you going to win a war that way?"

Eppley said American response to the torpedo boat attacks was "the right thing." He said we should have taken this kind of action in the beginning of the conflict.

Eppley had words of praise for Barry Goldwater, the GOP presidential candidate. "Goldwater has a good idea. He is going to do something about the situation. Before I went over there they were pulling troops out. Now we are sending 5,000 more. We have about 15,000 American troops over there," he pointed out.

He described Saigon as a town resembling an armed camp. "There is no line of defense in that country. You don't know who is a Vietnamese and who is a guerilla from the north.

"The Vietnamese are just lazy people, in my opinion. All they are interested in is the "Yankee Dollar," he ended.

Eppley attended East Stroudsburg High School and is married to the former Doris McCarrick. He joined the Army when he left high school, but has spent the last 12 years in the Air Force.

He is spending six months between enlistments. Right now he is trying to make up his mind whether to re-enlist or get out.

Wounded Four Times

"I'm not a coward, but after you are wounded four times you would be pretty silly to go back for the fifth time. This is going to have a big influence on whether I go back or not," he said.

State GOP Kills Platform Plan

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Republican State Executive Committee Friday scrapped the idea of a separate state platform to present Pennsylvania GOP views.

"I suggested to the executive committee that we do not have a state platform in view of the impression abroad that this might be intended as being antagonistic to the national platform," said Gov. William W. Scranton following an hour and 45-minute meeting with the state committee.

It was Scranton who, as recently as Thursday night, was backing the idea of a state platform upon which statewide and local candidates would run. His staff had been working on proposals for the platform all week.

Bitter Battles

Scranton said that the idea of a state platform definitely was not intended to be opposed to the national platform, even though Scranton and his supporters fought several bitter battles on platform issues at the Republican national convention in mid-July.

Scranton spoke at an impromptu news conference as he went from the executive committee meeting, which was closed to newsmen, to a conference of county chairmen open to the public.

Wayne J. Hood, director of field operations for Sen. Barry Goldwater's presidential campaign, addressed the county chairmen. He was substituting for Rep. William E. Miller, the GOP nominee for vice president who was kept in Washington by congressional duties.

Aim Of Platform

Scranton said the aim of a state platform had been to present to the people "accomplishments in the state over the past year and a half."

"We will tell the story—state issues and accomplishments — in other ways," Scranton declared.

A number of GOP leaders coming out of the meeting expressed their opposition to the state platform concept.

The governor disclosed that he met with former vice president Richard M. Nixon Thursday night and Friday morning at the executive mansion at Indiantown Gap.

"We discussed the Hershey meeting," said Scranton. He referred to a meeting next Wednesday sponsored by the Goldwater organization.

Scranton said also they had discussed the meeting at Gettysburg Thursday attended by Nixon and Goldwater with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Scranton also said that Nixon "offered to come into Pennsylvania on any occasion, an offer I told him I deeply appreciated."

Hood praised the cooperation he said he has received from Gov. Scranton and Pennsylvania State Chairman Craig Truax.

Czechoslovakia Hits US With 'Big Stick' Charge

'Limited' Put LBJ On TV

Robert McNamara

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Friday he advised President Johnson to make early television-radio announcement of the air strike against North Viet Nam targets so that this country "and others" would know the action was to be limited to North Viet Nam.

He also listed other reasons for his recommendation to the President.

McNamara made his statement after chronologies showed that Johnson went on the air while the first U.S. carrier planes were still winging toward target.

"Some Confusion"

Arthur Sylvester, Pentagon information chief, said the McNamara explanation was issued because of "some confusion" about the timing of the President's nationwide address late Tuesday night.

When Johnson announced to the nation Tuesday night that "air action is now in execution" against targets in North Viet Nam, the first of the planes from two carriers had been en route for 46 minutes but had not reached their objectives.

The President went on television and radio networks at 11:35 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time.

Chronologies show the first plane headed for the strike, a propeller-driven Skyraider, was launched from a carrier at 10:49 p.m.

First Bombs

The first bombs and rocket were released on a target at 1:15 a.m., Wednesday, by a jet Crusader, which took off after the Skyraider, but arrived at target sooner because of its greater speed.

McNamara said in a statement he recommended to President Johnson that he schedule his announcement of the retaliatory attack against the North Vietnamese torpedo boats and their supporting installations for 11:40 p.m., Aug. 4, because:

On Their Way

"1. By that time U.S. naval aircraft had been in the air on their way to their targets approximately one hour.

"2. Hanoi, through its radar, had then received indications of the attack.

"3. The time remaining before the aircraft arrived over their targets would not permit the North Vietnamese to move their boats to sea or to alert their forces.

Important

"4. It was important that the people of our country learn of the manner in which their government was responding to the attacks on its vessels from their President rather than from Hanoi which was expected to announce the attack at any moment.

"5. It was desirable at the North Vietnamese government and others be told as soon as possible the character of the attack. The President said 'Our response for the present will be limited and fitting. We know the risks of spreading conflict. We will seek no wider war'."

Congress Backs Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both houses of Congress gave President Johnson a smashing vote of confidence Friday in the Southeast Asia crisis.

By a vote of 414 to 0, the House adopted a bipartisan resolution backing the President's actions as commander in chief of the armed forces, and the Senate followed with an 88-2 endorsement.

Opposition Votes

The opposition votes were cast by two Democrats, Sens. Wayne Morse of Oregon who has repeatedly denounced U.S. policies in Southeast Asia as a threat to world peace, and Ernest Gruening of Alaska.

Gruening told the Senate "all Viet Nam is not worth the life of a single American boy."

Johnson hailed the action as "a demonstration to all the world of the unity of all Americans."

In a statement, he expressed appreciation to members of both parties for "their patriotic, resolute and rapid action."

"The votes prove our determination to defend our forces, to prevent aggression and to work firmly and steadily for peace and security in the area," the statement said.

Sen. Goldwater

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, the GOP presidential nominee, joined fellow Republicans in voting approval and support of Johnson's decision to strike back at Communist North Vietnamese attacks on U.S. warships in the Gulf of Tonkin.

The resolution — Morse said it gives Johnson "blanket authority to wage war.

Poverty Bill Vote Due Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House handed President Johnson a solid, major victory Friday night, approving his high-priority antipoverty bill, but a final vote was delayed until Saturday.

Technicality

Opponents raised a technicality — demanding a specially printed copy of the bill — after administration forces had saved the bill from the brink of defeat and approved it by a 228-190 roll call vote.

That vote was on the bill as an amendment to the original measure brought before the House, which was changed to bring it into closer conformity with one passed earlier by the Senate.

Delayed Vote

The delayed vote will be on its final passage as a bill, not an amendment. Friday night's vote, however, indicated a hard-won triumph for Johnson was all but sealed.

This result, plus the leadership's success in quickly turning a 35-vote defeat into a 28-vote victory in an earlier test, seemed to make the final roll call no more than a formality.

The Senate bill is identical in its essentials and House leaders appear confident their version will be accepted promptly and hastened to the White House.

Senate Okays Tocks Island Allocation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $4.4 billion appropriation to finance a program of federal public works in the year that started July 1 won Senate approval Friday.

In passing the bill by voice vote, the Senate rejected efforts of Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to delete three relatively small items.

measure now goes back to the House which had voted some $107 million less. If the House refuses to accept the Senate version of the bill, the measure will go to a Senate-House Conference Committee to resolve differences.

Approved was $450,000 to continue planning the Tocks Island dam on the Delaware River in New Jersey and Pennsylvania during the current fiscal year.

UN Invites Foes To Council Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council on Friday invited both North and South Viet Nam to take part in debate on the new Southeast Asia crisis. Then it listened to Czechoslovakia and the United States exchange bitter charges on events in the Gulf of Tonkin.

U.S. Accused

Jiri Hajek, the Czechoslovak delegate, accused the United States of exercising "big stick, gunboat" policy in taking military reprisals against North Viet Nam for attacks on U.S. vessels. He said the United States was hasty in its counteraction.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson responded that Hajek was echoing both Hanoi and the Communist regime in Peiping in accusing the United States of aggression.

"How long do we have to wait —until one of our ships is sunk with all of its incalculable consequences?" Stevenson said.

He said to safeguard peace and security and the independence of Southeast Asia "is the reason—and the only reason — that there is any United States presence in that area."

He said the United States does not seek to expand the conflict in Southeast Asia, but that "armed aggression, whether in the Gulf of Tonkin or anywhere else, will not be tolerated and will not go unanswered."

He appealed to Czechoslovakia to use all of its influence to convince North Viet Nam "to cease its provocations."

Compelled To Speak

Stevenson said he had not intended to speak, but that he was compelled to answer charges made by Hajek.

The Czechoslovak delegate declared that the U.S. vessels involved in the action in the Gulf of Tonkin were on a provocative mission and that the U.S. retaliatory action was "naked and brutal aggression."

Platon D. Morozov, the Soviet delegate, supported the statements of Hajek with a declaration that the "plea of self-defense by the United States is unfounded and unjustified."

Roger Seydoux, the French delegate, asserted that only a political solution can end the crisis in Southeast Asia. He repeated France's call for a new conference "between the interested powers to bring about such developments."

Invitations Approved

The exchanges took place after the council approved invitations to North and South Viet Nam that left the door open for both sides to submit statements instead of sending delegates to appear in person. This raised the prospect that the council would shelve further debate unless there are new developments in Southeast Asia.

After the exchange the council adjourned at 5:39 p.m. subject to call at the decision of the president after further consultations.

Turks Deny Attack

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The Greek Cypriot government charged four Turkish air force Sabre jets attacked Polis village and hit an Italian ship there Friday, but Turkey firmly denied it Saturday.

No Bullets

The Turkish government said its planes flew over the embattled eastern Mediterranean island Friday and would be back Saturday, for reconnaissance, but insisted no bullets were fired.

It said the island may be bombed by the Turks unless American-led efforts to find a solution for the Cyprus conflict are successful.

Denying the accusation by the Makarios government of Turk air intervention, Turkey's Vice Premier Kemal Satir said in Ankara: "They — Greek Cypriots — must have mistakenly taken the jet planes' noises for machine gun fire."

In Athens

In Athens, Greek Defense Minister Peter Garoufalias ordered a general alert of Greek Armed forces early Saturday. Greek warships were reported steaming out of Crete, Rhodes and other bases.

The Greek Cypriot government here placed the whole island on a general state of alert Friday night.

New Crisis

The new crisis developed at the climax of two days of renewed fighting between the Greek Cypriot majority and Turkish minority in the north west and in the capital itself.

Scranton Still Solid Barry Backer

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Gov. Scranton said Friday night that he would keep his pledge "to the letter" to support Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee.

Scranton, who was defeated by Goldwater for the nomination in San Francisco last month addressed some 350 persons at the Pennsylvania Young Republicans convention here.

The governor stuck to a prepared text, but he added some Praiseworthy remarks about Goldwater that were not in the prepared text.

Scranton said that both he and his daughter, Susan, 18, had received from Goldwater, two of the most sensitive letters he had ever seen.

"Many times during the weeks I campaigned prior to San Francisco I said that I would support whoever was chosen by the convention," said Scranton. "As you know, I am keeping that pledge to the letter. The Goldwater-Miller ticket has my complete support."

R. F. Kennedy Seeks New York Senate Seat

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

WASHINGTON—Attorney General Robert Kennedy has definitely made up his mind to run for the Senate in New York.

This will be formally announced within a week.

The 38-year-old head of the Justice Department made this decision after President Johnson publicly eliminated him as a possible running mate.

The President has been informed of Kennedy's intention to run for the Senate and heartily approved it. The matter was discussed by him and Mayor Robert Wagner during the latter's White House visit last weekend.

It is authoritatively understood Kennedy has personally talked to Wagner, and he indicated his endorsement.

Similar discussions have taken place with other influential New York Democratic labor, civil rights and business leaders. With a few exceptions, they urged Kennedy to seek the seat held by Republican Senator Kenneth Keating.

Kennedy has been blowing hot and cold on this for some months. But the extraordinary success of his one-time press assistant, Pierre Salinger, in winning the California Democratic senatorial nomination, followed by being appointed to the seat of the late Senator Clair Engle, and the President's slamming the door on the vice presidency, persuaded Kennedy to try for a Senate career himself—even though he has never been a New York resident.

God's People Learn to Worship ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

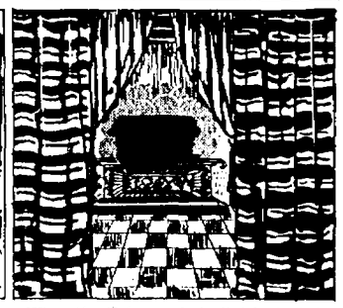
By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 25—40.

God gives Moses exact instructions for building and furnishing the Tabernacle; enrobing and consecrating Aaron and his sons, who are named priests; and for the Tabernacle's support and operation.—Exodus 25-31.

While Moses is on Mt. Sinai, the Israelites worship a golden calf. Furious, Moses orders 3,000 slain, but prays for their deliverance when God sends a plague as further punishment. —Exodus 32-34.

At Moses' request, the now-contrite children of Israel freely offer their talent and labor, jewels and possessions to God, building and furnishing the Tabernacle according to His instructions.—Exodus 35.



When the Tabernacle is finished, God, in the form of a cloud by day and fire by night, enters the Holy of Holies to guide the Israelites.—Exodus 36-40.

GOLDEN TEXT: Psalms 95:6.

Today's Lesson:

God's People

By R. H. RAMSEY

THERE are in Exodus two accounts of the Tabernacle — the divinely revealed specifications for its erection, and the actual account of the carrying out of these divine commands.

The Tabernacle itself was a great tent, 30 cubits long and 10 cubits wide (a cubit being approximately 1½ feet). In its innermost part was the Holy of Holies, a 10x10 cubit square in which the ark of the covenant was placed. The altar of burnt offering and the laver were placed in the great court before the tent.

The terms "tent" (Exodus 26:36), "tabernacle" (25:9), and "sanctuary" (25.8) all denote the holiness of the place. Whatever the term applied, the Tabernacle was a place where God revealed Himself in glory; a place where He could be worthily worshiped through a priesthood and sacrifice; a place where God would dwell among His people manifesting Himself in the glorious light which filled the Holy of Holies.

Exodus 28 has to do with the clothing of the priests, all of which is very important and interesting. In chapter 29 we have directions for the consecration of the priest; instructions pertaining to his garments, the order of sacrifices preceding his consecration, then the consecration itself and a final word concerning the sacrifices to follow the act of consecration.

In addition to the sacrifices, there are three principal features involved in this ritual: the ablution, symbolizing the need for purity on the part of those engaged in divine worship; the investiture, in which Aaron and his sons were clothed in the garments described in chapter 28; and the anointing with sacred oil, symbolizing the graces and gifts of the Holy Spirit.

Exodus 30 and 31 are more or less an appendix giving further directions on the functioning and support of the Tabernacle, and the selection of the craftsmen who will build it. This section ends with a reference to the observance of the Sabbath, which differentiated the Israelites from surrounding pagan nations.

With Moses away on Mount Sinai, the people asked Aaron to make them some God, or image, who might guide them through and protect them in the wilderness. Aaron co-operated, suggesting they melt down their earrings which he then fashioned into a golden calf for them to worship.

Seeing this, the Lord was wrathful, intent on destroying all the Israelites save Moses. This passage (Exodus 33) is filled with Moses' prayers of intercession for his people.

When the Israelites have been punished, in part, for their transgression, Moses seeks a new revelation of Himself, God answers, assuring Moses that His own divine presence will go with him. But Moses requires something more explicit. Will God go, not only with him, but with the people? He asks for no mere angel, but the presence of God, Himself, as incontestable evidence that the Israelites have found favor with Him and are separate from all the people on earth.

Down from Sinai at last, Moses and the now-contrite Israelites begin the building and furnishing of the Tabernacle according to God's instructions. All the children of Israel gave their time, talent, jewels and possessions to this great work

Had God chosen, He could have miraculously supplied all the materials for the building of the Tabernacle. He did not do so because He wanted His redeemed people to offer all the necessary materials from their own possessions.

The Tabernacle was finished at the time when the Feast of the Passover was celebrated, all done "as the Lord commanded Moses." Nothing was left to man's invention, nothing added, nothing omitted. God was His own designer for His Temple which was to last five hundred years.

Parson To Parson

The Quiet Time

The day was warm, the sky was blue, and the boat cut through the smooth waters of the lake like a hot knife through butter as it went in ever widening circles.

The reason for boating in circles was the fact that my small son Douglas, age 7, was at the oars learning how to row. Now how I ever talked myself out of the rowing seat and "conned" Doug into the work detail is another story; let's just say I'm good at that!

The water splashed from inexpert handling of the oars, but his mother and I just grinned and remained soggy. The little fellow had not only conquered a fear of boating, but was now actually rowing and enjoying every moment.

Had I not told him to pull more on the starboard oar and ease up on the port oar we would never have reached the dock. A boat is not easy to keep in a straight course so advice and kindly teaching was necessary.

The lad's whole heart was in his efforts and he was sure that the little craft was going in the right direction, but he was wrong. All his work without proper guidance would be wasted toil as he could not possibly know in one lesson.

Many people today are much like the boy in the boat, they are positive that they are going in the right direction when, in reality, they are only traveling in circles.

Church attendance, to some, is the complete fulfillment of Christian duty, but in fact it is but the beginning lesson. Our faith is a way of life, not just an hour-a-week affair.

Now, it is necessary to receive instruction and the proper place to be on a Sunday is in church. What about the rest of the week? Do we spend enough time in studying The Word in our homes? Do we reserve a quiet time apart from the daily stress and strain in which to meditate?

Walking in the woods or gliding along the surface of a lake offers peace to the mind and constructive meditation will clear the attic of the mind of the cobwebs of materialism.

Now, this quiet time is not during church time, or in place of regular worship. There is a definite need for more of our time for the things of the Lord, and without this closeness we are rowing our boats in circles.

Going in circles can be fun for a time, but there then comes a time when we have to straighten our course. If we are making too much noise rowing how can we everhear the quiet voice of instruction?

Let us be still, enjoy a quiet time, and hear the voice of the Lord.

Reputation For Thinking

By KIM FORMAN

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — The Rt. Rev. Chandler W. Sterling, a former professional jazz musician, has some far-out themes to keep the Episcopal Church jumping in Montana.

Bishop of the Montana Diocese, the spiritual leader of 12,000, he has a reputation for independent thinking and frank speech.

"I'm trying to take the Church out of the stained glass jungle," the 53-year-old bishop said. His office is on Helena's main street, Last Chance Gulch. He is proud of his western background and wears a tooled cowboy belt and large silver buckle with his clerical clothing.

Here are some of the things that have made him controversial.

— He says the Apostles didn't understand Christ.

— He refuses to consider Sunday sacred.

— He brought the first Negro clergyman into the state.

— He uses breezy, modern language in an informal way that surprises conservative churchmen.

Bishop Sterling refers to the Apostles as businessmen, interested in their own advancement and possible political advantage. He said Christ is probably as misunderstood today as he was nearly 2,000 years ago.

He opens his guest speaking engagements by sitting at the organ and playing revival tunes and Negro spirituals. He asks the audience to clap hands and relax.

"We need a modernization of church language," he said. "I am referring to all churches. I don't think we are getting our message over. I am convinced the New Testament is not intelligible to most people."

When one woman complained about the Negro clergyman he brought into the state, he told her priests come in several different colors and she should have specified a choice.

When his oldest daughter was married in the Roman Catholic Church, he gave the bride away in traditional style. He later said Christians will all be united one day anyway.

"The churches are moving too slowly," Bishop Sterling said. "They have emerged from the horse and buggy into the Model T age, but that's about as far as they have gone."

Bishop Sterling wants more adult instruction classes, but not necessarily on Sunday.

He went to Northwestern University of Evanston, Ill., for four years and then Seabury-Western Seminary.

Born in Dixon, Ill., he is married and has one son and seven daughters.

Ann Arbor, Mich. — Dr. Karl Kurth of St. Louis, retiring Secretary of Missions for the Lutheran Synodical Conference, was honored in a special recognition service at its 48th general convention here. Dr. Kurth recently completed 18 years of service for the Conference, supervising Negro missions in the United States and Africa.

Several years ago the Conference accepted a proposal from one of its constituent members, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, to assimilate all Negro Lutheran congregations under its supervision in the United States into the districts of the Missouri Synod. Most of these congregations were in the south, and transfer into the Southern District of the Missouri Synod was completed in 1962.

The Conference resolved here to turn over its missionary function in Nigeria and Ghana, West Africa, to its two constituent synods, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and the Synod of Evangelical Lutheran Churches. The latter, a small church body of Slovak Lutheran congregations, expressed a desire to participate in the mission work in Ghana to a greater degree, and has pledged an additional amount of $12,000 annually over and above its regular commitment for the next two years.

The Synodical Conference began mission work in Eastern Nigeria in 1936. At its annual convention in 1936, the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Nigeria, now an established church body, elected its first national president and vice-president. The baptized membership of the Nigerian Lutheran Church is 32,000 more than 200 established congregations.

Lutheran Synod Urges 2 Members To Return

Ann Arbor, Mich. — Continuation of the Lutheran Synodical Conference as presently constituted with only two member churches was voted at its 48th general convention here as delegates also urged the return of two former members to the 92-year-old organization of conservative Lutheranism.

The dual action was taken by representatives of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and the Synod of Evangelical Lutheran Churches (Slovak) in a two-day meeting, July 28-29. By extending a session into the early evening to conclude its business, the convention closed a day ahead of schedule.

The Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod and Evangelical Lutheran Synod (Norwegian), which withdrew from the Conference last year over differences in doctrine and practice with the Missouri Synod, were asked to "rejoin the common task of sound confessional Lutheranism through the agency of the Lutheran Synodical Conference."

Delegates also called for more meetings between member churches of the Conference and sister church bodies overseas, such as the one held last year in Cambridge England, in the hope of "bringing all the churches in this fellowship into a closer association."

The imbalance of the Conference's present structure was reflected in the fact that only eight of the 110 delegates registered at the convention here came from the 20,464-member SELC. All the others were from the 2,683,876-member Missouri Synod.

The president of the Conference, Dr. John Daniel of Bethlehem, Pa. and the secretary, the Rev. Arthur Bohlmann of Western Springs, Ill., easily won re-election on the first ballot for two-year terms. Dr. Daniel, a member of the SELC, has headed the Conference since 1960.

In the only contested position, for the vice presidency, Dr. Leslie Frerking of Charlotte, N.C. former president of the Missouri Synod's Southeastern District and a civil rights leader of the Synod, vied with the incumbent Dr. Carl Zorn, through three ballots.

When the third count ended in a 50-50 deadlock of 100 ballots cast, Dr. Frerking withdrew his name from consideration and Dr. Zorn was declared unanimously elected. He is pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church, a Missouri Synod congregation, in Closter, N.J.

Regional Meetings Set On Lutheran Welfare

NEW YORK — Four Lutheran health and welfare regional conferences will be held this fall in California, Wisconsin, Oregon and the District of Columbia.

The regional meetings are under the joint sponsorship of the National Lutheran Social Welfare Conference and the Associated Lutheran Charities.

Included in the NLSWC are welfare persons from the American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church in America. The Associated Lutheran Charities is composed of welfare representatives of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

According to the Rev. G. S. Thompson, executive secretary of the National Lutheran Council's Division of Welfare with which the NLSWC is affiliated, the four conferences are expected to draw agency executives and staff, pastors, board members and others interested in this program of Lutheran churches.

The meetings will be held in Santa Monica, Calif., Sept. 20-21; Green Lake, Wis., Oct. 5-7; Portland, Ore., Oct. 8-9; and Washington, D.C., Nov. 4-6.

In announcing the conferences, Mr. Thompson said that Christians need to be alert to needs of people, but they also have a duty to learn how to answer those needs with the best available skills.

"To meet those needs, as well as the old ones, new methods and techniques are being developed," he said, pointing out that "welfare conferences will expose needs and equip us to meet them more effectively."

Mr. Thompson reported that outstanding national leaders in the welfare field have been scheduled for the programs in the various regions.

Regional chairmen for the four 1964 Lutheran Health and Welfare Conferences are: Southwest — The Rev. William J. Black, San Francisco, Calif.; Northwest—Karl A. Langbecker, Portland, Ore.; Central—H. Roderick Daniels, Smithville, O. and Eastern—Reuben T. Jessop, Baltimore, Md.

The regional meetings for those interested in Lutheran welfare activities are held every two years. In alternate years a national meeting is held also under the sponsorship of the National Lutheran Social Welfare Conference and the Associated Lutheran Charities. In 1965 the Lutheran Health and Welfare Forum wil be November 8 to 10 at the Statler Hilton Hotel, Detroit, Mich.

Episcopalian Directing Urban Center

CHICAGO — An Episcopal clergyman has been named to succeed Dr. C. Kilmer Myers as director of the Urban Training Center for Christian Mission, an interdenominational project in which Lutherans are cooperating.

Named to the post was the Rev. James P. Morton, director of the Episcopal Church's national urban work program. He will assume his new duties on Nov. 1.

Dr. Myers, also an Episcopal clergyman, has been director since last fall. He recently submitted his resignation to accept election as suffragan bishop of the Diocese of Michigan.

Announcing the selection of a successor to Dr. Myers was the Rev. Joseph W. Merchant, chairman of the center's board of directors and urban church director for the United Church of Christ's Board of Homeland Ministries.

The training center, scheduled to open in September, has the support of 32 American churches.

Pipher: Keller Charges Old News

STROUDSBURG — County Commissioner Stuart Pipher said yesterday jury commissioner Leon Keller was brought before the county commissioners because Keller was complaining to others that his charges against another Jury commissioner were not fully investigated.

Pipher also said once again that he thought county solicitor Russell Mervine should have been aware that Keller was going to charge Forrest Graves with padding his time slip.

Mervine maintains he was "very surprised" when Keller made the allegation against Graves. He said he would have called for a closed session if he knew Keller was going to claim Graves was paid for hours he did not work.

Keller's charge was made in open meeting; Graves' answer was heard in closed session. Keller charged Graves with marking his time slip with four days he did not work.

Yesterday Pipher requested an interview to "clarify a lot of misunderstanding that has surrounded this situation from the beginning."

Speaking in the commissioner's office in the presence of Republican Commissioner John Price and William Reaser, chief clerk, Pipher, the lone Democrat on the board, said:

Started In April

"All this started back in April when the jury commissioners were filling the jury wheel on direction of Judge Fred B. Davis. After they filled the wheel Keller approached me and said Graves was turning in more time than he actually worked.

"He told Stanley Rader the same thing. At the very next meeting the board went over the time slips and questioned the bills submitted to us.

"We also mentioned this to our solicitor and I assume he also checked the situation. After this meeting the commissioners dropped the subject.

"Then I found out he was going around talking to reporters and Judge Davis complaining that we didn't investigate his charges. On the day of the ICC hearings July 24, I was told as I entered the courtroom that Keller was still going around making the charge.

"At this point he was trying to make me look bad. I immediately called Bill Reaser, our clerk, and told him to get all the bills out for our meeting on July 27. We went over all the bills and decided to call Keller in at our next meeting.

On Agenda

"All this was done in an open meeting and I assume Mervine knew all about it. Everyone else did. Reaser even had Keller on the agenda for our meeting July 30.

"Mervine claims he knew Keller was coming in but didn't know what he was going to say. All I can say is that back in April Keller made the charges, I didn't.

"When he came in he gave his story. Then we had Graves in and heard him. We called an executive session at the request of our solicitor. We all agreed after going back over jury commissioner slips for 1962 and 1963 that everything was alright.

"When I agreed to an executive session I may have made a mistake. These are the things you have to become sharp to. And in this instance I wasn't.

"The whole reason for me having Keller in was that he was trying to imply that I wasn't doing my job. I decided to iron this thing out and bring it to a head."

Pipher said during the interview that the commissioners agreed with their solicitor's advice that the extra time and money was not excessive. "This was based on going over the back bills," he pointed out.

IN STROUDSBURG—Shoppers flocked into town for bargains of sidewalk sales days in Stroudsburg. The three-day buyers paradise ends today. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

Sidewalk Days Called Successful

STROUDSBURG — Most merchants in the Stroudsburgs yesterday called the annual Sidewalk Days sale a success. Comments ran from fair to very good, although a few reported slow periods.

The sale, which began Thursday, runs through today. Merchants have installed sidewalk booths in front of their stores, and the streets are crowded with shoppers, both visitors and residents.

Many vendors have put up gaily colored flags and other decorations, giving the cities a Left Bank atmosphere.

One Stroudsburg merchant, whose merchandise does not allow an outdoor booth, said he noticed a definite increase in customers.

Comments from Stroudsburg sellers were: Soroptimists in front of the Holiday Gift Center, "I think we have done fairly well."

Howell's Flowers, "We've sold quite a few flowers. Without the A&P, there's not as much activity."

DeVivo-Quaresimo and Sons, "It's been pretty brisk."

Lim's Sport Shop, "Fair."

Donald's Family Shoes, "Real well."

East Stroudsburg merchants on S. Courtland St. said:

Seymour's Shoes, "Very good," and Towne and Country, "So far, very good."

The Famous Department Store on Crystal St. said "Very well."

Boy Scouts Councils File Tax Appeals

STROUDSBURG — Two regional Boy Scout councils, who own camps in Monroe County, yesterday filed appeals in Common Pleas Court complaining that as non-profit organizations their property is exempt from taxes.

The two councils are specifically appealing from the County Board of Assessment's decision to evaluate the camps and place them on the county tax rolls.

The Wyoming Valley Council, Inc., Boy Scouts of America in Kingston is asking the court for relief from a recent board decision to assess 100 acres of unimproved land the council owns in Tobyhanna Township.

The appeal, filed by Atty. James Kitson of Stroudsburg, claims the board assessed the land for $850 on June 10, 1964.

It is alleged the 100 acres is necessary to camp activity and is not in competition with private enterprise. The appeal states the council is exempt from taxes under a 1943 state law.

During 1963 the state legislature passed a law making it legal to tax any land owned by non-profit organizations if the land is not a necessary part of the non-profit venture. Or, if the land is used to compete with private enterprise.

The other appeal was filed by Atty. Lee B. Koehler of East Stroudsburg in behalf of the Bethlehem Area Council, Inc., Boy Scouts of America.

The council has been assessed $33,150 on 1,300 acres of land and campsite it owns in Tobyhanna and Coolbaugh Townships. The council also owns part of Stillwater Lake and its camp is known as Camp Minsi.

The appeal calls the assessment improper, excessive, unjust and inequitable.

Both councils had appeals turned down by the board of assessment.

Only 2 School Districts Carried Pleas To State

STROUDSBURG — Only two of the four school districts who originally appealed the Monroe County School Board's reorganization plan have carried their appeals to the State Board of Education.

The four-unit plan submitted by the county board was approved by Council of Basic Education a month ago and districts wishing to appeal the decision were required to submit them by yesterday.

Ross and Eldred Township school boards beat the deadline and filed formal protests with the secretaries of the county board and state board.

John C. Litts, county superintendent of schools, said both appeals have been sent to Harrisburg. Litts said he did not know when the state board would decide the county's plan.

East Stroudsburg Borough and Porter Township school boards did not follow their initial protest of the four-unit plan with formal appeals to the state board.

Under the county plan the three joint school districts will be reorganized into three separate school districts eliminating the individual school boards that now make up the joint districts. Stroud Union will remain the same under the plan.

N'fld Ambulance Service Number

NEWFOUNDLAND — A serious delay in securing ambulance service in this area can result if local residents use the old telephone directory, which listed Newfoundland as a separate area, instead of the new Scranton directory in which all telephone numbers are listed alphabetically.

The new Frey ambulance number is 676-3381, and this number is available at all times, since Mr. Frey maintains a "phone sitter" when he is away. However, the old number, 676-3482 is now his private residence number, and is not always answered. It may, however, be used as an alternate if the ambulance number is busy.

The Will To Fight

The swift American retaliation against Communist North Viet Nam's unprovoked attacks on our destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin near Red China has raised war fears around the world.

But the decisive action by President Lyndon B. Johnson has taught the Communist world a lesson which it will not forget.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk explained that lesson clearly when he said, "Aggression is invited if there is doubt about the response. Let us leave today's aggressors in no doubt whatever."

The way in which President Johnson, Dean Rusk and Robert McNamara, secretary of defense, removed that doubt startled the world. But it should make every American proud of his government, and its leaders in both parties who backed this limited action to the hilt.

The possibility of Red Chinese intervention in the war in Viet Nam is considerably enhanced by our smashing air attack on four North Vietnamese torpedo boat bases—one of them within 50 miles of Red China.

We might imagine Red China's attitude toward such close atacks as something like our reaction to a similar Russian air attack on bases in northern Mexico from ships in the Gulf of Mexico.

If we were Red Chinese generals, we might very well be anxious to move troops and planes into North Viet Nam and to invade South Viet Nam. The United States has now given the Red Chinese a pretext for almost any aggression in Southeast Asia.

That is the danger we face now. Unfortunately, there was no alternative. The United States could not allow Communist torpedo boats to attack our destroyers in international water without limited retaliation.

We had to prove to the Communists that we are willing to fight to defend ourselves as well as to defend the freedom of others.

This is itself a healthy thing for America and the world. We have found that neither China nor Russia is in a hurry to start a general war.

We have released some of the national frustration developed by slow months of American casualties in South Viet Nam where we are only helping and not leading the battle against Communism and aparently losing the battle bit by bit.

We have stood at the brink of war with President Johnson, as we did with President Kennedy in the Cuban missile crisis in 1962, not because we chose to go there to prove our strength, but because we were forced there to defend ourselves.

Our purpose is still to maintain the peace, but we will fight to stop Communist aggression.

President Johnson summed up the United States position, like the American eagle with arrows in one hand and an olive branch in the other with this warning to Red China:

"To anyone who may be tempted to support—or to widen the present aggression by North Viet Nam, I say this:

"There is no threat to any peaceful power from the United States of America. But there can be no peace by aggression and no immunity from reply."

Comment Of The Day

"I must confess I stand in awe of you. You are not members of the cabinet, and you don't meet regularly with the cabinet, and therefore you are eligible for vice president."

—Robert F. Kennedy, quipping about his elimination as a vice presidential running mate by President Lyndon B. Johnson before a school for Democratic Congressional candidates.

Dear Abby

A Son's Thoughts

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I can't get that Father's Day column out of my mind. This is for the mother who sent you her 19-year-old son's letter in which he said "If I turn out to be a father like my dad, I wish somebody would shoot me."

Only when your son has sons of his own will he appreciate what his father has done for him. I assume your son is not paying his own way through college. Few sons do.

I had the same type of father. He never played ball with me. He never cuddled me when I was young. Never talked with me, man-to-man. He never took me on trips, either. But he worked evry day. And he paid the bills. And he put food on the table and clothes on my back, and shoes on my feet. And he quietly did without himself.

I used to feel resentment, too. But now I have sons of my own, and realize that there are many ways of showing love. And my father loved me no less for his inability to show it. One day that son will live to eat his words.

OLDER AND WISER

DEAR ABBY: The letter on Father's Day from the boy who was disappointed in his father bothered me. Considering the thousands of boys who have had to grow up without fathers, I think this young man is lucky to have had even a part-time father. At least he's made a home for his family and has paid the bills. If the boy fears his younger brother will suffer from the absence of a father's love and guidance, why doesn't he spend more time being the older brother? Older brothers are usually adored and looked up to by the younger ones.

I have four sons, from 9 to 16. Their father has been in the state mental hospital since the oldest boy was eight years old, so it is almost as though they had no father at all. His mind is gone and he will be there the rest of his life. Yet the boys keep busy, help each other, help me, and I have never once heard any of them complain about how tough it is to be without a father.

MOTHER OF FOUR

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from the college son to his mother, criticizing his father. The boy sounded like an over-protected, spoiled, snivveling brat just looking for points against probably a hard-working, long suffering, devoted, introverted father. Who sent this kid to college? My husband is a quiet man, and our three sons adore him in a quiet way. They feel no necessity to drool over one another. One son is a newspaper man and the other two are engineers, and they all married wonderful girls. The boys turned out to be the kind fathers brag about, but my husband never bragged. My husband never took the boys hunting or fishing. In the summer he either was going to college (he is a school teacher) or working to supplement our income. He never wrote any of them a letter in his life. Yet they loved and respected each other and enjoyed a fine relationship. What we need today is more strong silent men who quietly rule their homes. Then no son will hope to be shot if he isn't taken fishing or to Disneyland. Honestly!

Negroes' Frustration Sparks Riots

Editor, the Daily Record:

The newspapers, TV, and radio throughout the country are trying to inflame the white communities against the Negro people of America—who are on a so-called "rampage of violence."

James Baldwin, noted Negro author, has always reminisced, recalling his childhood when he was a little boy in Harlem—the times he was terrified at the sight of a white policeman on his block.

On a Saturday night, nine-year-old little James Baldwin who loved to haunt the libraries, dreaming of the day when he would leave Harlem and live the way an individual should, was beaten mercilessly by a white policeman for just standing there on the block, frightened and unhappy.

Yet hundreds of Negroes, geniuses and non-geniuses, are handled in the same fashion by the police, and the white landlords. (They are not necessarily rioters).

Remember, if your skin is black, you can be beaten by a patrolman for a traffic violation—or just for breathing. You can't easily get a job.

Your chances for a pick-and-shovel job are greater—a hundred times greater—than your chance at a pipe wrench or teaching in a public school—even if you are a college graduate!

If you live in Harlem, or in a Negro community in Rochester, or a city in New Jersey, you are crowded into a few concrete and asphalt acres with 200,000 other people who are miserably poor and rejected where the little children seek the streets for companionship and acceptance, because Mom and Dad feel too discouraged and lonely — the accompanying motions of the feeling of failure—to have time for their kids.

Why? Your wages are half of that of the white worker and life expectancy is less if your skin is black!

When the white people of their community blame the Communists for "rousing the Negro communities to rioting," let them remember one thing—no organization, Communist or otherwise, can ever arouse people to mass rebellion unless they and their children have been supressed—subjected to frustration, starvation, constant fear and death.

'I'll Give You Yanquis One More Chance To Talk This Over'

Record Book Review

Hemingway's 'Moveable Feast' Bitter, Tedious, Strained

A Movable Feast, by Ernest Hemingway. 211 pp. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $4.95

By Richard Manheim
Stroud Union English Teacher

This posthumously published group of sketches deals with the author's days as a virtually unpublished, struggling writer in Paris of the 1920's. The best seller describes places and people Hemingway knew and loved or hated there the literary ideals he coped with and, to a much lesser extent, his daily existence.

The general setting is the Montparnasse and St.-Germain-des-Pres section of Paris' Left Bank which was then the artistic mecca for American expatriates.

Those tourists who have had the stamina to make the three-day dogged, I'll-enjoy-this-by-damn Paris tour would not recognize the places so endearingly described.

This is the Paris known only to those who have spent a year or more there. This is the intimate Paris whose sights, sounds and smells had to be lived with to be loved; and Hemingway obviously loved Paris. He has used his setting well.

Writer Personalities

More important, however, than the city he knew and loved were the people there. For the most part these were literati, either neophyte or established.

Hemingway reaches his heights in describing personalities.

At times, though, it might make one wonder how a man of his literary stature could come to vent his spleen over a relatively unimportant man whom he hated.

Take, for example, his describing Ford Madox Ford as "an ambulatory, well clothed, up-ended hogshead."

And later, "I had always avoided looking at Ford when I could and I always held my breath when I was near him in a closed room . . ."

This much malevolence seems unnecessary but, it must be admitted, does add very nearly the only humor to be found in the 211 pages.

Gertrude Stein

Hemingway's treatment of other literary lights and satellites is much more favorable. The sun is Gertrude Stein. The satellites are Ezra Pound, James Joyce and F. Scott Fitzgerald, among others.

Stein, a quasi-lettered lesbian who was queen bee of a "salon litteraire" in Paris, is harshly revealed, for possibly the first time, for the person she actually was — a vindictive, petulant woman whose influence on too many writers was not always for the good.

Her stylistic dogma was one of simplicity and repetition. This evidently had a strong affect on The Big Hem since nearly two-thirds of "A Moveable Feast" is little more than simple declarative sentences desultorily conjuncted by "and."

Tedious Style

A wearing and tedious style to read, needless to say! One example of tedium: "You had to watch a jumping race from the top of the stands at Auteuil and it was a fast climb up to see what each horse did and see the horse that might have won and did not, and see why or maybe how he did not do what he could have done."

An example of repetition (and some bizarre logic!): ". . . and I had omitted the real end of it which was that the old man hanged himself. This was omitted on my new theory that you could omit anything if you knew that you omitted and the omitted part would strengthen the story and make people feel something more than they understood."

Public Curiosity

After reading page after page written in such a style, one can only conjecture that the reason "A Moveable Feast" is so high on the Hit Parade of Literature is because of loyalty and or curiosity on the part of the reading public.

The pro-Hemingwayites will delight in several portions of this work. It cannot be denied that some of Hemingway's finest writing can be found in section five and six as well as in all the vignettes concerning Scott Fitzgerald.

They are well- and warmly-written, revealing Hemingway at his sentient best. The last portion of the chapter entitled "People of the Seine" is truly a poetic inspiration, especially the paragraph ending with: "When the cold rains kept on and killed the spring, it was as though a young person had died for no reason."

Critics Field Day

The Hemingway detractors will also have a gleeful romp with "A Moveable Feast." Those who would derogate Hem for his style will be pleased to find some of most decidedly execrable prose therein.

This can be especially noted in his conversational idiom. Many of the early and middle chapters read much like some of his early works, e.g., "In Our Time," "The Sun Also Rises," and "The Torrents of Spring."

And this is the strange anachronism.

Too much of "A Moveable Feast" smacks of his work of the 1920's yet it was written in the 1950's long after two of his finest works, "A Farewell To Arms" and "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

Strained Masculinity

And then there is the school that would deprecate Hemingway for his gargantuan display of strained masculinity. This group could build their case up well using "A Moveable Feast" as the capstone.

It would go something like this:

Look at all of H's truculent play at the games of manliness, boxing, bull-fighting, big-game hunting, big gun, big game, big stick, and so forth.

And look at his writing. Is it not all concerned with violence? Man - violence in which hard, cruel man-action overcomes the antagonist and, even if not winning, demonstrates that man-ness can shrug off the loss.

And then we have his role as a rugged saviour in the Spanish Civil War, this harshest, meanest of all man-games. Then, they say, look at the man's moustache and later the beard.

What is he trying to prove? They go on: have you ever heard his voice?

He was able to cover the fragile, slender young body by years of hard eating and drinking and a garb of rough man-tweeds; he could cover the gentle, effeminate face with that ubiquitous man-symbol, hair: he could cover his proclivity for painting and the gentle arts with man-playing activities; but, he could not cover or change that one immutable fact, the fact that he had a thin, piping, girl's voice, one that could be favorably compared with a voice, minus the scratch, one might expect from an Edison gramophone.

And now, with "A Moveable Feast," look at the numerous times he pleads for the cause of masculinity and his naive repugnance and surprise upon happening to overhear a short exchange of words in passion between Miss Stein and her "companion," Alice B. Toklas.

In one conversation with Stein he says that he used to carry a knife because "you had to be prepared to kill a man . . . in order not to be interfered with." Don't the psychologists say that that attitude is harbored by either, brutish morons or latent homosexuals? (The group stops here.)

In any event, suffice it to say that the reader will have to judge for himself.

This reviewer was both repulsed and gratified by A Moveable Feast; repulsed by the confusion of a fragmentary style but pleased to sit once again on the terrasse of the Closerie des Lilas and sip a cooling Ricard on a painfully beautiful summer day — as they can be only in Paris — or to smell the velvety warmth of the cafe Lipp on a cold night.

Whether one has been to Paris or not, A Moveable Feast must be read, if only out of intellectual curiosity. It is Hemingway's last cry.

About Town

—By Gene Brown

Little Green Men

The space ship reportedly landed in a cove in the north Georgia mountains.

As the little green men started down the gangplank, they encountered the sheriff, there to meet them with double-barreled shotgun.

"Whut air ye little green fellows lookin' fer?" he demanded.

And their leader replied, "Little green women. What else?"

When my brother Cecil and I were youths we stowed away on a ship bound for the Argentine. When we got there we skipped the ship and roamed around Buenos Aires for several weeks.

A reporter for an English daily found us and we told him that we were doing a special story comparing the beauty of the girls in the States to that of the Argentine girls. The reporter made a feature of our quest which was published the next day.

The Captain of the ship read the story and threw us in the brig for a week, till the ship sailed. The only reason I mention this is that every time I see a pretty girl I think of the Argentine, and vice versa.

Mary Fontanella Calls Goldwater Followers Worst GOP Liabilities

Editor, The Daily Record:

"The conscience of the conservative is pricked by anyone who would debase the dignity of the individual human being" from Chapter 1 of "Conscience of a Conservative" by Senator Barry Goldwater.

I'm not sure that I have the 'conscience of a conservative' . . . that's why I'm reading the book.

I absorbed every possible minute watching the before, during and after sequences of the GOP national convention in San Francisco on television.

And I'm continually reading everything pertaining to it and its cast of characters. I'm definitely concerned and certainly blessed with mixed emotions — which should not make me unlike a lot of other people.

But, "actions are still louder than words"; and louder than all the words I've read by you, George Dixon, Walter Lippman and Mason Denison are the actual things I saw happen at the Cow Palace.

Based on that number one sentence above, these are the things that "wonder me": . . .

1. If those attending the convention believed in the above principle, where was it when Gov. Rockefeller stood up to speak?

2. If this be a worthy view where was it when Sen. Goldwater was to share equal time on that Sunday night's broadcast of "Meet the Press' with our Gov. William W. Scranton?

3. If it was used as judgment against Gov. Scranton's so-called "name-calling" why should it then allow Sen. Goldwater to call our incumbent President a "faker"?

There is another beautifully worded sentence from the same chapter and book. "The conservative is the first to understand that the practice of freedom requires the establishment of order; it is impossible for one man to be free if another is able to deny him the exercise of his freedom."

1. What happened to this one when a stronger plank for civil rights was defeated?

2. Where was this conception of ideals when the plank against extremist groups was not given fair treatment?

3. Why wasn't this one remembered when Eisenhower spoke out against "the sensation-seeking columnists" —not meant as a general indictment of all the press!?

4. Why were both statements in hiding when the presidential nominee made his acceptance speech? The leader could have carried his followers anywhere he chose to go.

I disagree with Mason Denison's surmise written in his column of July 20 ... "Pennsylvania's Gov. William Warren Scranton may well become one of the worst liabilities Republicans could muster this fall."

I think Goldwater followers are to be one of the worst liab- muster this fall and until they can take to heart and put into practice the two basic fundamentals copied above and written by their own leader!

I commend you, Mr. Editor, for your excellent news coverage and your editorials on these issues, and thank Walter Lippman for very basic, common-sense analyzing (particularly Monday, July 13). Saying it "conservatively," we must each be led by our own conscience.

MARY FONTANELLA CRESCO

(Mrs. Fontanella was an unsuccessful candidate in the April primary election for Monroe County member of the State Republican Committee.

Husband, Favorite Tree, Cut Down

Editor, The Daily Record:

In 1952 a man had a dream! Many men have dreams. Some are realized and that's how empires are built. But Mr. Jack D. Weiner's dream was not so ambitious.

His dream was to own a small house and some gardens wherein he could write his books on "Retail Merchandising" with Dr. R. G. Walters, then director of Teacher Training in Grove City College and Dr. John W. Wingate, Professor of Business Administration at the City College, New York.

They had already written four editions, and Mr. Weiner, who did the ground work for these books was ready to write the fifth.

Through a mutual friend, Mr. Weiner met Mr. John Soble. He offered Mr. Weiner 13 acres adjacent to his own property. Mr. Weiner bought.

After several bulldozings, the land proved to be a great disappointment. It was all hills, slopes, gullies. Many practical friends tried to dissuade Mr. Weiner from going any further.

But when a man has a dream, it knows no obstacles. The dream began to take shape. First, the foundation was dug. Fill, hundreds of loads was brought in. The following Spring, the shell was put up. Mr. Weiner's joy knew no bounds.

His dream was becoming a reality. Besides his teaching at Northeast High School in Philadelphia, he took on another job. He became Training Director of the Baltimore Markets, a food chain in and around Philadelphia.

A country home is a demanding mistress. Money is poured into her. There are so many practical needs but when one has an eye for beauty, too, a man feels all his work and effort, his money and time well worth it.

To fill up the gullies, the government sold us hundreds of spruce trees. These we painstakingly planted, tended, nurtured.

Every year we gleefully noted their growth and beauty; their practical usefulness in helping retain the soil and stop further erosion was proven.

We planted an avenue of trees for the same purpose—one on each side of our private road. They were becoming thick and beautiful and the lawns beyond both sides of the slopes remained intact.

In the summer of 1962, Mr. Weiner wrote the sixth edition of "Retail Merchandising." This was to be his finest book and his last for Mr. Jack D. Weiner had developed cancer.

He wrote like all possessed. He finished the book, now only "Wingate and Weiner," Dr. Walters had passed on. The teacher's manual, the student workbook, Mr. Weiner's work was finished! The book is used in the East Stroudsburg High School.

A young visitor (local) recognized it on our bookshelves. But his dream was finished and he saw it fulfilled, but I am glad he did not see one of his beautiful spruces that he had nurtured so painstakingly, maliciously cut down Christmas Week with a power saw.

If the man who saved $3 or $4 knew that Mr. Weiner lay dying in Philadelphia, I'm sure he and his family would not have enjoyed their Christmas tree to the fullest, for I can picture no man so heartless.

Mr. Weiner died Feb. 27 and the emptiness in my heart is as large as the empty space of the missing tree.

Grass Root Goldwater Campaign Compared To John Wesley's Revival

Editor, The Daily Record:

The Philadelphia Inquirer recently reported that four Methodist clergymen, three of them from the Stroudsburg general area, objected to a statement favorable to Sen. Barry Goldwater made by Methodist Bishop Fred Pierce Corson, and said that the good Bishop "does not speak for all Methodism."

I gather from this these men of the cloth are anxious to counteract any good-for-Goldwater reaction the Bishop might have effected in his statement.

(Surely, it is obvious that a Methodist, clergyman or layman never speaks only what all Methodists speak on religious or political matters.)

Here are a few comments:

I. We have here an example of the press Goldwater has had from the beginning of his drive for the Presidential nomination.

The Inquirer rushes into print, ten inches of copy, just because four country clergymen disagreed with something favorable-to-Goldwater which was said by one of the most honored and brillaint Bishops in the Nation.

II. I assume from the story that the gentlemen believe there is a large number of Methodists who object to Goldwater, that the gentlemen are among the objectors and that this is a matter of paramount significance.

I grew up a Methodist, the John Wesley type, so I have a right to guess there will be a large number of Methodists objecting for no other reason than to have something to object to.

I am not surprised there are four Methodist clergymen who object, and I would bet my eyeteeth there are others, notably Doctor Blake.

However, it is neither new nor novel nor surprising nor alarming, for there were Methodists who objected to Lincoln, both Roosevelts, Kennedy, etc.

III. While it is true that a section of the press, not inconsiderable either, which selects and slants the news for propoganda aims, yet be assured that the press is still dominated by objective reporters and if reasons for the objections to Goldwater had been offered, I am sure they would have been reported.

Frankly, we little people down here are sick of argument by ad hominem, by innuendo and most of all by La parrot.

IV. Plain people have taken pains to recapture the Republican Party with the help of Sen. Goldwater. And let's be honest now, wouldn't you say there are some Methodist boosters too.

As the most fact filled newsmag in the land put it, "If ever there was a grass-roots campain it was Goldwater's."

Seems to me the John Wesley Methodist revival, which according to Gibbon, did the world more good than all the wars of England, was also a grass-roots affair.

It is again the party with the common touch. It is now the party of the common man, the man who dares to fight for the freedom to be uncommon if he can.

At the convention hypocricy was booooood. Fence straddlers were toppled. "Liberal" masks were ripped off. Skeletons were uncloseted.

Neither begging nor bribing nor clandestine beguilings saved sycophant sophisticates from falling thumpingly from their silver saddles.

Shades of John Wesley's religious revival.

V. All of us have at least two reasons for what we do and say: the one which sounds good and the real one.

Here is a question which seems to me to be of considerabel importance to every American right now, including Methodist Americans.

What is the real reason which prompts the Communist world to attack Sen. Goldwater more than it has attacked any other American politician, with the possible exception of Mr. Kennedy, and what is amiss in the mentality of those who take the most frivolous opportunities to join this attack.

Let's find out which side of every question the Commmnist is on then hop on the other side. (II Cor. 6:14, 15.)

Shooting Deer With Arrows Cruel To Beast

Editor, The Daily Record:

There should be a stiff law for anyone using a bow and arrow for deer hunting or anything else. Some times they hit the target, but not often.

An arrow in a deer's neck, shoulder or back when he is running through the woods is very bad for the poor deer. Where is the law in this case, to be so cruel to a beast?

20 Fingers Key To Music At Newfoundland Theatre

By Peggy Bancroft
Record Corredpondent

NEWFOUNDLAND — "Empathy is probably the only suitable word for it —the reason why twenty fingers (ten each at facing pianos), can produce the magic music of twin pianos at the Newfoundland Musical Theatre.

Ten of the fingers belong to Douglas Finney, musical director of the group who came to the Poconos via California. The other ten go wherever Richard Samuels goes — and he came to South Sterling via Athens, Bangdok, Tokyo, New Delhi, and New York.

A great deal of the favorable comment about the newest of Summer stock theatres in the Poconos has been caused by the twin piano sound which, with the addition of percussion by James Erwin, of Sparta, N.J., comes close to creating the feeling of a full orchestra. Actually, the music is so well-done that it becomes a part of the play, and not an addition to it.

Finney, who was born in Evanston, Illinois, began his musical career at the piano at the age of nine years. He was graduated from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and took graduate work at the University of Southern California. While his instrument is piano, he is also an accomplished clarinetist, and has conducted orchestras on the West Coast. His stock experience has been in such hits as "Plain and Fancy;" "Kiss Me Kate;" "Show Boat;" "Carnival;" "Little Mary Sunshine;" and "Music Man."

Started At Six

Samuels, who serves as assistant musical director, was born in New York City. When he was six years of age, he approached a piano, played the eight measures of "Moonlight Sonata," and immediately found himself studying music seriously. He became a composer at the age of seven, and stopped composing at the age of 17 — "a brief career in the field."

After studying at the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, he went on concert tour in the United States and then on to Athens, Bangkok, Tokyo, New Delhi, and St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands. He also has several hobbies — traveling, hiking and mountain climbing, skiing and photography — when there's time, which isn't often. He has five years of Summer stock experience, and the organ is his second instrument.

Both pianists are thoroughly enjoying their Summer in the Poconos. Finney expresses a special appreciation of the teen agers in the area. "They're so well - brought up. There's no cynicism here, and it is a refreshing change," he said.

Not Easy

But Summer in the Poconos, when you're in stock, is not easy, both admit. It involves an eleven to twelve - hour day every day, with work beginning usually about 10 a.m. and continuing until after the closing of the show at 11:30 p.m. The work "behind the scenes" is terrific — and no sooner is completed for one show than it starts for another, while performances of the first are going on.

While their figures operate as one, their choice of "favorite musical" of the season is different. Finney prefers the score for "Gypsy" — and Samuels likes the melodies from "South Pacific." Both enjoy playing all kinds of music, but for listening, it's Baroque, or 17th Century music.

Backing up the twin pianos with percussion, James Erwin is really the traveling man of the company, for he drives back and forth from Sparta each day. He is most recently from the Grist Mill Playhouse in New Jersey.

Art Show At Gap Aug. 14-15

DELAWARE WATER GAP—More than thirty artists have already registered for the first annual Delaware Water Gap outdoor art show.

The local Chamber of Commerce and the Pocono Art Mountain Group are co-sponsoring the event as part of the 75th anniversary observation of the Water Gap, according to Stephen Matos, chamber secretary.

The exhibit will be set up along Main St. between the Waring Workshop and the Deer Head Inn, Matos said. It will be open from 11 a.m. to dusk.

He reported applications from professional artists in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Matos added that there will be a special show by area children, with ribbons to the winners. Natella Spragle, Lottie Farley, and Mrs. Mona Fitzgerald will judge the children's exhibit.

Artists who want to exhibit may get applications from Matos.

Urban Project Okay Seen In 4 To 6 Weeks

Eastburg To Be Granted Credit For State Aid For Flood Job

WASHINGTON, D.D. — Sen. Joseph Clark's office in Washington said yesterday the federal government will not reimburse Pennsylvania for money the state spent to build the inter - borough flood control system.

However, Ralph Weidner, Clark's legislative assistant said the Borough of East Stroudsburg will be granted credit for money spent by the state and it will be used as the state's and borough's share of urban renewal costs for projects in East Stroudsburg.

Weidner said the Federal Board of Rivers and Harbors has informed him that the board intends to reject the state's request for reimbursement.

Ernest Bentfield, field representative for the Urban Renewal Administration, said he expects the Redevelopment Authority of Monroe County will receive final approval of both the S. Courtland St. and Lincoln Ave. projects in "four to six weeks."

King Beers, executive director of the authority said, the authority should have money to start land and property acquision in the Courtland project "sometime in the fall."

It had been previously predicted that the Post Office Dept and Acme Markets — both scheduled to locate in the project — would break ground on buildings Aug. 1.

Weidner said in 1955 — after the devestating flood — it was apparent that Congress would not be able to appropriate money fast enought to get the urgent flood control project under way.

He said Dr. Maurice Goddard, state secretary of Forrest and Waters, met with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and said the state would provide money for the project if the Federal Government agreed to reimbursement.

The legislative assistant said the agreement between the secretary and the corps had no legal basis and because of this the federal government has refused to directly reimburse the state.

The $418,000 in flood control credits will be used as the state's and borough's share of the $1,914,642 planned to be spent on both projects.

Beers said the borough's share for both projects will be $50,000. He said the money will be spent on projects the borough would eventually need even if the projects were not planned.

'My Fair Lady' Held Over Again

TANNERSVILLE — Cherry Lane Playhouse has again held - over "My Fair Lady" for a fourth and "positively final" week, according to producer Rea Hooker.

The show at the professional summer stock theater has been playing to standing-room and sold-out houses for its entire run. Directed by Herb Surface of the original Broadway cast, the Lerner and Loewe musical stars Barbara Cole and Sam Carter.

Lt. Williams is a graduate of the Chattanooga High School, class of 1957. He also attended Capitol Page School, Washington, D.C., and served as page to the late Senator Estes Kefauver.

Driebe Moves For Spans' Goodwill

PHILLIPSBURG, N.J. — Edward K. Driebe of Stroudsburg, chairman of the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission, called a meeting of commission members and representatives of several Lehigh Valley municipal governments and business interests this week to "inform the public and to create goodwill in the communities served by the bridge commission."

Driebe said the meeting was held "to exchange information" on the proposed deep-water port in the Trenton-Morrisville area in an effort to clarify positions prior to the upcoming Senate hearings.

The U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee has scheduled hearings next Tuesday and Wednesday on legislation that would allow the bridge commission to use its revenue from bridge tolls to finance and underwrite a deep-water port.

Lehigh Valley area representatives indicated they are planning to attend the hearings in large numbers to testify against the legislation.

Rooney Suggestion

The meeting was called by the bridge commission after suggestions by Rep. Fred B. Rooney and Sen. Joseph S. Clark, Pennsylvania Democrats.

Driebe explained that the bridge commission wanted to meet informally with each municipality involved, particularly Easton, Bethlehem and Allentown. Time would not permit these separate meetings, he said.

Frank Hollister, a special assistant to the Pennsylvania secretary of highways, said a new bridge for Interstate Rt. 78 traffic will have to be located at least 10 miles south of Easton if tolls are continued on the Bushkill St. bridge.

Hollister said the federal government will not allow the construction of a free bridge in the interstate highway system if it interferes with traffic on a nearby toll bridge.

Driebe replied the interstate bridge need not be located farther downstreams, because the bridge commission is prepared to construct the new span.

Both sides in the dispute are preparing their cases for the public hearings. Several state and national organizations are expected to testify, or at least to submit briefs.

Testimony on behalf of the bridge commission will be given by Driebe, Guy J. Swope and David J. Goldberg.

Dancer Blends Role Of Mother, Career

By Charles McNett
Daily Record Reporter

TANNERSVILE — Charmian Burn, star dancer of Cherry Lane Playhouse's production of "My Fair Lady" has another job she considers more important.

She is the wife of director Herb Surface, and mother of infant Carleton Surface.

Miss Burn, who was born in England, met her husband when the two were playing in the original Broadway cast of "Fair Lady." They have been married for about a year-and-a-half.

Studied In London

She studied dancing in London at the Ballet Rambert, and performed in "La Plume de Ma Tante," and for four years in the English production of "Fair Lady."

Miss Burn then came to the states for the last six months of the show's run in New York. Her husband worked in the show for its entire seven-year run.

She said their son has been "sleeping in dressing rooms since he was three-months old." The star dancer reported that young Carleton conveniently sleeps during shows, but a baby-sitter is necessary for afternoon rehearsals.

Need Attention

Asked if she recommended combining show business and a family, Miss Burn replied, "I would say yes at this age. But there comes a time when children need more attention." She intends to quit professional dancing then, she said.

"When they're old enough, I'll go back to dancing," she continued. She expects her retirement to last for some years, however, since they would like to have three children.

Sam Carter, star of "My Fair Lady," has a somewhat easier job. He and his wife, Betty, have a small son. Since Mrs. Carter does not act (she is the most loyal fan of the playhouse), he has a built-in baby sitter.

Jana Pearce, wife of co-producer and musical comedy star Jack Irwin, manages to combine the two careers. The Irwins have two small children, and husband Jack is currently playing in Dallas, Tex., with Ginger Rogers. None-the-less, Miss Pearce has found time to act and dance, and is assistant director for "My Fair Lady."

Biloxi, Miss., was founded in 1699.

Tobyhanna Student Gets Scholarship

EAST STROUDSBURG — Shirley E. Weber, Tobyhanna, has been awarded a four-year scholarship at East Stroudsburg State College by Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers. This was announced yesterday by Oscar L. Lingle, State PTA president.

Miss Weber is one of 28 young men and women to receive scholarships this year from the Hannah Kent Schoff Memorial Scholarship Fund of the Pennsylvania PTA Congress.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Weber, and a graduate of Pocono Mountain Jointure where her activities included hockey and the National Honor Society.

The 28 PTA scholarships are awarded annually to students who will prepare for teaching by attending Pennsylvania State Colleges. Each of the 14 colleges nominates two students after competitive interviews. Each scholarship is an outright grant of $150 per year for four years. At the beginning of the fall term, 112 students will be enrolled with PTA scholarships according to Mrs. George C. Dorsett, York Haven, R.D. 1, state PTA scholarship chairman.

PLAINFIELD TWP. — A seven-year-old Tatamy boy suffered internal injuries yesterday when he fell beneath the wheel of a tractor driven by Myrl E. Pysher of 512½ W. Center St., Wind Gap, Easton State Police said.

Brian Wetzel of 11A Bushkill St., Tatamy, underwent exploratory surgery at Easton Hospital Thursday night. Hospital officials said his condition was satisfactory.

Police said young Wetzel was riding on the axle of the tractor at 3:15 p.m. when it hit a bump and he fell off. They reported that the right rear wheel passed over his body.

Just Between Us — —

You can pre-set your mood as well as your expression and there are times when neither one turns out to be very appropriate. It's easier to see on other people, of course. Like the teenager answering the door expecting a caller of her own with a nicely calculated smile, pre-arranged in the mirror in passing, who discovers the caller is just a friend of her mother.

Going home for supper the other night I was all pre-set for a gentle melancholy, expecting to find the place deserted. It certainly called for a quick change of mood to find the whole back half-acre filled with drying sleeping bags, ground covers, tarpaulins and boys' underwear.

Seems four Explorer Scouts from Philadelphia with my brother-in-law Dr. Cyril Velkoff as leader had arrived a day ahead of schedule from a canoe trip which started Sunday above Kingston. And on the last day's paddle they'd overturned in one of the many rapids. It was, obviously, no place for gentle melancholy.

But speaking of Philadelphia, I was astonished that there are still some tickets available for the Philadelphia Orchestra's concerts next Tuesday and Wednesday. Catherine and Cy have had their names on the waiting list in Philadelphia for years. It seems somebody has to die before you can get tickets during the season there.

We're usually last-minute ticket buyers, to the despair of many a committee which has to cope with fitting in an overflow at the last minute. But this is one case where it might not be wise to wait beyond this weekend, that is if you really don't want to miss the musical event of the year.

Of course I'm always bursting with good advice — for other people. Like looking for the organizational booths among the commercial displays in sidewalk days. Among those I spotted were the Garden Club, Dames of Malta, General Hospital Aux., Business and Professional Woman's Club, and the SPCA.

The SPCA would be hard to miss since they've got one of the most elaborate inventories, including bushel and half-bushel baskets, painted white and decorated with felt cut-outs in enchanting designs for toy baskets. I don't know how many they sold, but they sure had some interested customers from the other organizations, leading to the suspicions that they thought the idea worth pirating for their own next whatzis sale.

Tons of Music Travel In Orchestra's Precious Cargo

By Henry Peltier

Shawnee — When the Philadelphia Orchestra goes on tour (and it is the world's most widely traveled orchestra) it takes along more than nine tons of equipment. One glance at the more than $500,000.00 for which the instruments are insured proves that this is a precious cargo. These are famous instruments made by great craftsmen. Played by the superlative musicians of the Orchestra, they produce the inimitable Eugene Ormandy "Philadelphia Sound."

Values of the more famous instruments within the strings range from $30,000 to $3,000. One of the most famous instruments within the strings is owned by Concertmaster Anshel Brusilow. This rare violin is a Guarnarius del Gesu made in 1743 in Cremona.

Another extremely valuable instrument; a Goffriller belongs to Samuel Mayes, First Cellist. Assistant First Cellist, Elsa Hilger owns two rare instruments. One is a Janarius Gagliano dated 1745; the other is a Petrus Gagliano, undated.

Roger Scott, Principal Bass, also boasts two instruments, one an Evangelisti. First Violist, Joseph de Pasquale performs on an instrument made by Gasparo da Salo in Breshia nearly 400 years ago.

Among the rare and valuable violins are two owned by first violinist Veda Reynolds. One is a 1742 Gaudagnini, the other a Stroioni. Morris Shulik, who shares a music stand with Miss Reynolds, plays a 1751 Camilli made in Mantua. Behind Mr. Shulik, Sol Ruden plays another Camilli made in 1734. Behind Ruden sits Frank Costanzo with his Amati made in Cremona in 1611, the oldest violin in the Orchestra. Elsewhere in the violin section are Meyer Simkin with a 1750 Gagliano and Louis Gesenway with an Amati made between 1680 and 1690.

Famous and unusually valuable instruments in the second violin section belong to Jerome Wigler, who plays a Camilli made in Mantua in 1739, and Armand di Cammillo, who has a Tommaso Balesfrier made in Mantua in 1795.

In the cello section, Francis de Pasquale performs on a Teccler, and Santo Caserta plays an instrument made by Gracino of Milan in 1697.

Many valuable instruments are the property of the Philadelphia Orchestra Association. No matter how priceless, these instruments are used constantly by members of the Orchestra in rehearsal and concert performances. Most valuable of these is played by Veda Reynolds; it is a Stradivari, Cremon, 1681, a recent acquisition through a special grant to the orchestra. Other instruments present to the orchestra include a 1700 Guarnerius and a Guadagnini violin and a rare Francois Tourte violin bow.

Of special interest is the silver instrument played by Mason Jones, Principal Horn. Like all horns in the section, it was made by Kruspe. Mr. Jones' horn was the last of these great instruments to be imported, since the Kruspe factory, damaged by air raids, is now located in East Germany. Mr. Jones also owns a Waldhorn, the natural or valveless type for which Mozart scored his music. This instrument is estimated to have been made in 1765.

All of these great instruments will be heard next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings when the Philadelphia Orchestra appears at Shawnee Inn.

Some Timely Tips On Freezing Food For A Well-Stocked Winter Larder

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist

Stroudsburg—One of the most confusing things to the new freezer owner is judging the quantity of fruits or vegetables to buy. It's easy to overstock your freezer with one kind of vegetable unless you plan ahead. Using the guide below, try to judge how many pints your family will use during the winter months and freeze accordingly.

Approximate Yield of Fresh Fruits and Vegetables

Kind	Fresh As Purchased or Picked	Frozen
Apples	1 bushel 1¼-1½ lbs.	32-40 pts. 1 pint
Berries	24 quarts 1 1-3-1½ pts.	32-36 pts. 1 pint
Peaches	1 bushel 1-1½ lbs.	32-48 pts. 1 pint
Pears	1 bushel 1-1¼ lbs.	40-50 pts. 1 pint
Plums	1 bushel 1-1½ lbs.	38-56 pts. 1 pint
Lima Beans (in pods)	1 bushel 2-2½ lbs.	12-16 pts. 1 pint
Yellow and Green Beans	1 bushel 2 3-1 lb.	30-45 pts. 1 pint
Brocoli	25 lbs. 1 lb.	35-42 pts. 1 pint
Cauliflower	2 medium heads 1-1 3 lbs.	3 pts. 1 pint
Corn	100 ears 1 bushel	27 pints
Peas	2-2½ lbs.	2-12 pts. 1 pint
Green Peppers	3 peppers 1 bushel	1 pint 32-40 pts.
Summer Squash	1 to 1¼ lbs.	1 pint

Freezing preserves food, it does not improve it. Therefore, freeze as quickly as possible after fruits or vegetables have been picked. Vegetables must be blanched (steaming two-three minutes in boiling water) and then thrust immediately in ice water in order to preserve flavor, color, and vitamins. So be sure that you have either a quantity of ice cubes stored in your freezer or plan to purchase them when you're ready to freeze.

Fruits are packed either with a sirup or dry pack with sugar. If you use the sirup pack, usually the 40 per cent sirup is recommended for most fruits. Mild fruit take lighter sirups and heavier sirups are used for very sour fruits. Below is a master recipe from which all sirups can be made. It takes one-half to two-thirds cup of sirup for each pint package of fruit.

Sirups For Freezing Fruits

Type of Sirup	Sugar	Water	Yield of Sirup
30 per cent sirup	2 cups	4 cups	5 cups
40 per cent sirup	3 cups	4 cups	5½ cups
50 per cent sirup	4¾ cups	4 cups	6½ cups

Dissolve sugar in cold or hot water. If hot water is used, cool sirup before using. Sirup may be made up the day before and kept cold in the refrigerator.

When packing fruit into containers be sure the sirup covers the fruit, so that the top pieces will not change in color and flavor. To keep the fruit under the sirup, place a small piece of crumpled parchment paper or other water resistant wrapping material on top and press fruit down into sirup before closing and sealing the container.

Freezing Apples

Sirup pack is preferred for apples to be used in fruit cocktail or an uncooked dessert. For pies, use sugar pack or pack unsweetened.

Select full-flavored apples that are crisp and firm, not mealy in texture. Wash, peel, and core. Slice and pack: Sirup Pack—Use 40 per cent sirup; to prevent darkening of apples, add ½ teaspoon crystalline ascorbic acid, available in drug stores, to each quart of sirup. Slice apples directly into container and pour sirup over. Press fruit down into containers so that it is covered with sirup. Leave head space, seal and freeze.

Sugar Pack: To prevent darkening, slice apples into a solution of 2 tablespoons salt to a gallon of water. Hold in this solution no more than 15 to 20 minutes. Drain.

Over each quart (1¼ lbs.) of apple slices sprinkle evenly ½ cup sugar and stir. Pack into containers, leave head space, seal and freeze.

Freezing Peaches

Select firm, ripe peaches with no green color in the skins. Sort, wash, pit and peel. If necessary, dip peaches quickly into boiling water for easier skinning. Slice peaches. For sirup pack, use 40 per cent sirup plus ½ teaspoon crystalline ascorbic acid for each quart of sirup. For sugar pack, to each quart of sliced peaches, add 2-3 cup sugar mixed with ¼ teaspoon crystalline ascorbic acid dissolved in ¼ cup cold water.

Freezing Lima Beans

Select well-filled pods. Shell and sort according to size. Blanch in boiling water:

Small beans—2 minutes.
Medium beans—3 minutes.
Large beans—4 minutes.

Cool promptly in ice water and drain. Pack into containers, leaving ½ inch head space. Seal and freeze.

Freezing Yellow and Green Beans

Select young, tender, string beans that snap when broken. Wash thoroughly; remove ends, cut in 1 or 2 inch pieces. Heat in boiling water for 3 minutes; chill immediately in ice water. Drain. Pack into containers, leaving ½ inch head space. Seal and freeze.

Freezing Corn

Whole Kernel and Cream-Style: Select plump ears with tender kernels. If milk is thick and starchy, it's best to freeze as cream-style.

Husk ears, remove silk and thrust in boiling water for 4 minutes. Cool immediately in ice water; remove as soon as cob is cooled. For whole kernel, cut kernels from cob at about two-thirds the depth of the kernels, pack into containers, leaving ½ inch head space. For cream-style, cut kernels at about center, and scrape the cobs with back of the knife to remove the juice and heart of the kernel. Pack into containers, leaving head space. On the cob: Heat in boiling water:

Small ears—7 minutes.
Medium ears—9 minutes.
Large ears—11 minutes.

Cool promptly in cold water. Drain and wrap individually in foil or seal air-tight in plastic bag. Freeze immediately.

Cut corn may be pan fried, without thawing, in butter in a skillet, then cover and simmer until tender. Or it may be cooked in a small amount of salted water for only about 5 minutes, or baked for 30 minutes in a 375 oven.

Corn on the cob should be completely thawed before cooking. This takes about 6 hours in a refrigerator or 1½ to 2 hours at room temperature. Oven roast for 20 minutes in a 400 oven, brushing each ear first with butter and sprinkling with salt. This is more desirable than boiling.

All above informatoion is from a Department of Agriculture booklet which I always use as my guide. Limited space prevents my giving more directions, but if you would like to have a booklet, send twenty cents to: Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, 25, D. C. The name of the booklet is "Home Freezing of Fruits and Vegetables."

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

I love catalogues. Most women do, I guess, regardless of their age. Bring a Sears catalogue into my home or office, and I can sit contentedly for hours studying every page, dreaming of all the things I'd rush out and order if ever my ship "came in." (Frankly, I doubt that the darned thing's ever been launched . . . but that's beside the point.)

The same magnetic appeal that exerts itself in behalf of Sears' catalogue, also casts a spell over me when I leaf through our August White Sale flyer. "Ah," I say to myself, "this is a splendid buy on Cannon towels . . . and we do need towels, don't we?" It seems to me we ALWAYS need towels, and I don't really mind seeing some of my very old ones fraying at the edges and wearing thin at the center, because I'm sick to death of them! My only complaint is that sometimes towels wear too long . . . and one does like something new once in awhile. Particularly, since style and colors change just as quickly in these home accessories as they do in family apparel.

The Cannons advertised in our White sale flyer are attractive as can be, with the florals being my favorite. And certainly we offer a variety of colors . . . Blue, Gold, Lilac, Green, Pink, Maize, Lavendar, Antique Gold, Raspberry, Bronze, Green Mist, Blue Dawn, and Celestial Blue. Now I ask you! what else could you dream of or desire?

Cannon sheets of luxury percale are also floral printed . . . and only 2.99 and 3.99 depending upon size and style. You know, it's just recently that I've been using the fitted sheets, and they are grand, aren't they? They are especially time saving if one has a bed that's set against a wall and a bit awkward to get to, because a fitted bottom sheet needs the minimum of smoothing. It just never gets out of place at all.

We have Springmaid percales too . . . as well as economy muslins, but, as one woman says, "I'd rather skimp on something else to pay the few cents difference and have a percale sheet." I'm inclined to agree . . . percale is so silken and smooth, and the difference in price is only 40c or so.

Pillows! THERE is another item we need in our home. I like a bulky, rather firm pillow that can be placed upright to lean against while reading in bed. But after a while even the best pillow becomes flimsy. Let's see . . . when did I buy one last? Ages ago, I dare say, and nothing lasts forever.

Area rugs . . . another White Sale item that almost any home finds useful. Here again the colors are terrific, and the prices are very reasonable . . . 2.99 . . . 3.19 . . . 3.99 . . . 4.99 and 5.88, depending upon type and size. There are runners . . . there are tone-on-tone rugs . . . there are 2-color Harlequins.

But at this point, I'm going to turn away from that flyer, and try to forget all I've seen. Each page is more fascinating than the last, but when it's all said and done, that flyer doesn't even begin to cover the White Sale story at Wyckoff's. One must visit the department and see for herself. Which is just what I intend to do . . . RIGHT NOW. . .Will you join me?

CD Runs Relief Operations When Disaster Strikes

(Ed. Note: The following was written by the Monroe County CD office as a statement of the uses and objectives of Civil Defense and its emergency operating center in the courthouse basement.)

STROUDSBURG — Civil Defense is a part of your government. It is an agency that coordinates all other elements of government in the conduct of relief operations during disaster.

It coordinates the relief operations of other disaster organizations, as well. In addition, Civil Defense educates and trains.

CD Council

Currently, Marvin E. Abel is County Civil Defense director serving under the direction of the Monroe County commissioners. He is assisted on policy matters by a Civil Defense Council.

Serving on this council at the present time are Judge Fred W. Davis, County Commissioner Stanley B. Rader Lt. Col. Clyde M. Russell, Sumner Bossier, Jr., James Somers and Dr. James C. Fahl.

Routine day-to-day administrator, as well as director of administration during an emergency, is Catherine K. Miller assisted by Doris R. Tabler.

Routine administration includes the processing of forms and reports to the federal and state government.

It should be noted that 50 per cent of Civil Defense expenses incurred by the county are paid by the federal government under a "matching fund" basis.

The county office is also responsible for the security and maintenance of over $200,000 worth of emergency equipment all of which must be ready for instant use.

Training and educational programs including auxiliary police, rescue, medical self help, director's training and radiological defense are scheduled and prepared by the county office.

Assistance on all of the above matters is given to any and all local civil defense directors upon request.

The County Civil Defense office routinely provides technical bulletins and survival education pamphlets both to civil defense organizations and the general public. Films on civil defense subjects are provided upon request.

Volunteer registration and issuance of state license plates are additional day-to-ady routines in the county office.

Public Education

Civil Defense educates the public on matters relating to survival-construction of home shelters, food and sanitation stockpiling, emergency sanitation, emergency firefighting in the home, emergency medical self-help, to mention a few survival subjects.

Civil Defense trains members of government and volunteers on technical disaster subjects. Some courses revolve around radiological monitoring, auxiliary police, rescue, and mass feeding. It organizes these trainees into disaster fighting units.

Civil Defense coordinates relief operations of disaster organizations.

It does this from an emergency operating center, which is a completely self-independent workshop, capable of providing its own light and heat, its own water, its own food, its own sleeping quarters.

This was the primary purpose for the remodeling program in the Monroe County Court House. This center has its own telephone switchboard, emergency radio facilities, a teletypewriter "hooked into" a state emergency net.

This center will be your "nerve-center" of operations of government during national disaster, or flood, or hurricane. It can be activated—and made operational on a moment's notice.

As you know, civil defense has mobilized, and for various reasons—flood, hurricane, great explosion.

It now operates a storm warning center, serving to warn our citizens during times of serious storm or possible flood. It has on hand emergency disaster fighting equipment, a DUKW, pumps, generators, rescue equipment. A new supply storage center is also a part of the new Court House facility.

Civil Defense has helped many local communities, to buy emergency equipment, through a cost sharing program, such as tank trucks, rescue and fire equipment, sirens, and radio communications' equipment.

This program has operated for over 10 years and by means of it practically all political subdivisions of Monroe County have benefited. The program continues to operate through your Monroe County Civil Defense office.

Civil Defense continues to aid the schools of the county. All high schools of this county have been given radiological monitoring equipment to assist in the training of students on these technical subjects. Texts have also been provided.

Several communities of Monroe County have turned to civil defense for help in times of crisis. On three occasions, civil defense has pumped the water for municipal consumption for periods varying from several weeks to several months.

An important function of your civil defense is to keep the community in touch with federal and state agencies on disaster matters. Should a "major disaster" occur again, as it did in 1955, civil defense will coordinate all incoming federal and state aid, including both dollar aid and emergency equipment.

Civil Defense also keeps in close touch with the military and arranges for military assistance when needed, such as manpower, helicopters, planes and engineering equipment.

Civil Defense functions under the direction of the county commissioners. A council is appointed by that board, to advise a director on policy matters and to share the great responsibility of disaster relief.

The commissioners recommend, and the governor appoints, the civil defense director.

The director coordinates the activities of the civil defense directors of the boroughs and townships, who, in turn, function under direction of their political leaders. For civil defense is truly an "arm" of the government itself.

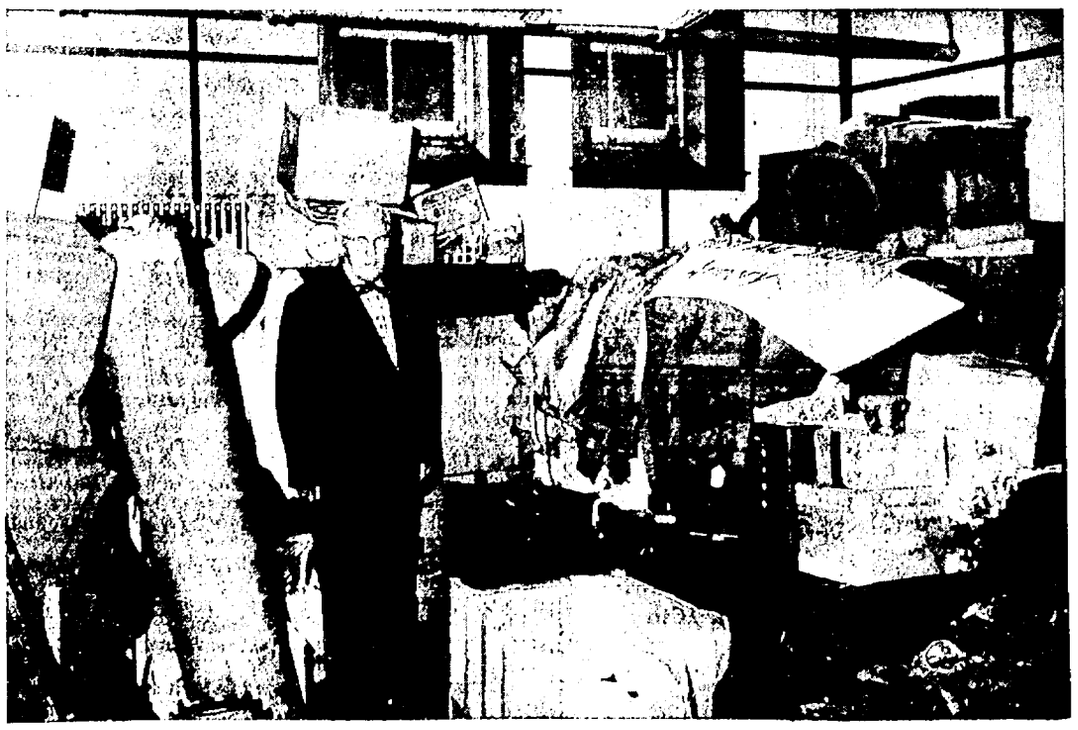
WASTED SPACE—Judge Fred W. Davis looks over boxes and litter on floor of unused room in old courthouse basement last year. With offices upstairs crying for space, the basement space remained unuseable.

LIKE A DUNGEON—Willard Quick, left, John Lesoine, center, and Judge Fred W. Davis tour old courthouse basement before renovations. Exposed pipes and bare lightbulbs, stone and concrete walls, and dampness made basement unsavory. View is of center steps. Indentation at left is now superintendent of schools' office.



CLEAN IT UP—Willard Quick, former commissioner, stands amid piles of boxes and junk in old basement room. Renovation costing $160,000 turned this waste area into useable space, and the litter was cleaned up. New board of commissioners finished the job.

1890 Building Expands

By Jeff Cox
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — There's a yellowed photograph taken "about 1875" that hangs in the prothonotary's office in the Monroe County Courthouse.

It shows the old courthouse —now the jail — with some moustachioed men, a few women, and a small boy posing in front of it.

There are two small saplings in the picture. One at either edge of the front of the building. A water pump juts from what is now the parking lot behind the jail.

Today, those people are all dead, but the jail still stands. The pump is gone. We decided to investigate the saplings.

Missing Trees

In the place where the saplings stood, there are now only two large stumps, weathered and sawed off at ground level.

A lot has happened to that section of N. Seventh St. since the photographer set fire to his flash pan that summer day in 1875.

The people died off, the saplings grew into huge trees. Too huge, it seems, for they were cut down a few years ago.

And about 15 years after the picture was taken, the new courthouse was built in 1890.

Commissioners John T. Palmer, Jerome Frantz, and Jonas Snyder made the big decision to erect a new courthouse. In the late 1880's, they consulted with their solicitor, Cicero Gearhart, and ordered the plans drawn up.

Courthouse Of Future

They hired T. I. Lacey and Son to make the blueprints. Though Stroudsburg at that time was still a very small town, they ordered a courthouse built for the future.

A. R. Brittain, chief clerk for the commissioners, noted all the activity in his minutes. When Lacey was finished with the plans, R. Shiffer and Sons got the contract for the building.

Shiffer used fine stone, made no provisions for electricity or telephone, of course, and carefully erected Stroudsburg's first four-story building.

Finally, in 1890, the courthouse was completed. Three grand old men of the county judiciary, bearing three grand old county names, attended the dedication, and moved in.

Judge Sam Dreher

President Judge Samuel S. Dreher took the first large office on the left as you enter the building. Associates Judges Charles D. Brodhead and J. DePue LaBar found other quarters.

The courthouse was in operation. Even the birds found homes high in the peak of the roof.

As the years passed and the county grew, the offices became worn with use. They filled up with papers and filing cabinets.

Forty-four years later, in 1934, the decision was made to erect an addition.

There were new names then. Samuel E. Shull was the president judge. George W. Woolbaugh, Peter C. VanBuskirk, and Harry F. Mackes were the commissioners, served by clerk Oscar F. Green.

The solicitor was Frank B. Holmes; John L. Westbrook was the county engineer, and the architects, then, as now, were H. T. Rinker and M. R. Kiefer.

Courthouse Doubled

The builders were careful to use the same kind of stone when making the addition, which doubled the size of the courthouse.

Even so, a thin line still is visible where the newer stone doesn't quite blend with the old.

Twenty-nine more years passed, and in 1963 the faces changed. The need for room didn't change, however, and the decision was made to renovate the basement.

In comparative disuse, except for storage and a lavatory, the basement until this year was a cold damp place of dirty stones and filthy windows.

Bare light bulbs illuminated the dungeon-like rooms. It smelled rank.

CD Basement Project

With the offices upstairs crying for space, Commissioners Willard Quick, John Lesoine and Stanley Rader called for complete renovations of the basement under the Civil Defense Emergency Operating Center plan.

Under this plan, CD emergency facitilities could be built, and the offices used for other purposes until a disaster.

The commissioners knew that the government would put up half the money. It was an opportunity they couldn't pass up.

Two thirds of that board was voted out of office last November, but the work is being carried on by Rader, Stuart Piper and John Price. Bill Reaser is their clerk, Atty. Russell Mervine is their solicitor. Fred W. Davis is the president judge.

Rinker, Kiefer and Rake are the architects, Easton Electro is the construction company.

The renovations are modern. Some might call them almost lavish.

RENOVATED BASEMENT—Kathy Williams, probation office secretary, drinks at fountain. Unidentified man in background gives relative distance of hallway in renovated courthouse basement. The modernization cost approximately $160,000 with furniture and equipment.

Civil Defense Center In Courthouse Dedicated Today With Speeches, Tours

By Jeff Cox
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Workmen, eating up the last few dollars of the $160,000 it cost to renovate the courthouse basement, were still putting the finishing touches on the rooms early this week.

When they closed their paint cans and left, Monroe County owned a spanking new Civil Defense Emergency Operating Center, which doubles as offices for county agencies in time of peace.

The Federal Office of Civil Defense, through the State Council, will pay half the cost.

What does the county have for its investment?

There will be speeches today at 1:30. Public tours are set up from 2:30 to 8 p.m., but we can do a little arm-chair touring right now.

Bright Light

If you enter the basement from the north—the back end of the courthouse, a flood of fluorescent light and modern building makes a sharp contrast with the ancient upstairs of the courthouse.

It smells new; the walls are a pleasant pastel color. Acoustical tile lines the ceiling, an asphalt tile covers the floor. It's cool—an air conditioning system modulates the temperature in the entire area.

To the left as you start down the hall are the CD offices. We turn left, and on the left is the office of Marvin Abel, CD director. New office equipment and desks furnish the room. The next door leads into the radio room.

Radio Center

Here there are eight chairs facing long formica tables. This will be the hub of radio communications in the event of disaster.

At the end of this side corridor is the message center. It has a large emergency switchboard and six phones in their separate niches.

This will be the hub for telephone communications.

Walking back toward the main corridor, Mrs. Catherine Miller's office is on the left. A new IBM electronic typewriter—the whole basement is busy with IBMs—sits on the desktop. Mrs. Miller is the deputy director for CD administration.

Board Room

Through her office is the board room, where Mrs. Doris Tabler works. She is the secretary. She also uses an IBM, a new ball-writer type.

There are closets along the right hand wall. Directly in front of you is a blackboard and corkboard. On the left wall is a cork bulletin board.

Two 10-place tables fill the center of the room. The warm pastel on the walls is set off by a shocking blue covering for the chairs and furnishings.

In the CD office, the clocks look like tiny television sets. The time—on the armed services system of 0100 hours to 2400 hours—clicks up automatically, the seconds are listed on a tiny revolving wheel.

Dial By Card

Two of the color telephones are of the new "dial-by-card" type. On the top is a little slide for holding plastic cards. By a special code, oft-used numbers are punched onto the cards. When the number is to be dialed, all you do is slip the card into a slot and push a button, and the call is automatically dialed.

The handset hangs from two little hooks on the side of the phone.

The CD people also have an intercom system. This system is labeled Bogen-Phone. It has 19 stations that cover the courthouse. It is devilishly hard to use until you're familiar with it.

Leaving the conference room by the exit next to Mrs. Tabler's desk, we're back in the main hall. Next door on the left is the CD kitchen.

Modern Kitchen

It could be something out of "Better Homes and Gardens." All along the front and left hand walls are floor to ceiling wood-grained closets and cupboards, with snapping doors.

This will be stocked with provisions during attack for the 75 people who will stay in the center. Along the right hand side are more cupboards and stainless steel sinks and formica counters. A new electric stove and refrigerator-freezer grace this side of the room.

This brings us to a division in the hallway. Before crossing the divide, we'll peek into the rooms across the hall.

At the door is the CD food and water storage room. This contains provisions and medical supplies to sustain the 75 people for two weeks or more.

Behind this is the coal bin.

Next down the hall on the right is the heating plant. Two coal stokers and boilers handle the normal heating chores. A new addition is the emergency generator.

Outside the courthouse, buried and chained to a concrete platform, is a huge 20,000-gallon oil storage tank. This contains enough oil to keep the generator going for a little more than two weeks to sustain the 75 survivors until the radiation dust blows away.

Emergency Well

The county also had to sink an emergency well next to the court house to supply the needs of the 75, and to afford a supply of pure water.

In a little room behind the emergency generator, the air conditioning unit is enthroned.

Back in the hall, we cross the divide, and encounter the lavatories on the left. They are done in tile, with shower facilities. There is a men's toilet, a men employe's toilet, and down the hall, a ladies' room with shower.

The rest of the offices in this section wil be used for CD purposes during an emergency, but now are being used for county agencies.

Support Office

Next on the left is the office of Janeth Pensyl, who collects fines and support payments.

Next is the office of probation. Immediately inside the door sits Kathy Williams, Henry McCool's secretary. Behind a glass partition is the office of McCool, who is juvenile boys' probation officer.

McCool has a theory—a good one—that boys are put on the denfensive by the usual austere furnishings of officialdom.

So, he has furnished his office like a well-appointed living room. He has a fine hand-made hutch, a colonial table, colonial chairs, and end pieces, lamps, stacks of books, a picture of Abraham Lincoln, and colonial motif curtains.

In this friendly atmosphere, McCool interviews and deals with wrong-doers brought to him.

Probation Offices

Kathy Williams' office leads into an inner hallway. Off the hallway are the offices of Marvin Abel (Mr. Abel doubles up for two jobs) who is the adult men's probation officer and support officer, and Elizabeth Martin, chief probation officer who also handles adult women and girls, as well as support.

Across the hall from the probation offices are the offices of the county superintendent of schools.

Superintendent John Litts has a tastefully appointed room, as does Walter Sebring, his assistant.

The secretary is Mrs. Harriet Carson, who flies from desk to duplicating room most of the day.

Down the hall one door is the home economist's office, staffed by Mrs. Laura Halliday. Marcia Bloss, speech therapist, also has a desk in that room.

Steps lead upstairs from that end of the corridor. Immediately outside the fire door is the CD dispensary.

There are steps leading upstairs on the left side of the divide. On the right side, a corridor leads outside to concrete steps.

That's the tour.

Equipment Uses

Mrs. Miller explains some of the functions of the paraphenalia we describe thus:

The card dialer is used for fast calling in an emergency; it also prevents mistakes in dialing. Forty calls have to be made in a very short time.

The cost of the construction was $125,000, but this has been raised by some changes, and additions to architects' fees.

There is a teletype in the radio room which gives immediate contact with Eastern area and state headquarters of CD.

The basement can maintain 75 people during attack—three eight hours shifts of 25 each.

Chosen 75

These chosen 75 are comprised of the county CD council, government officials, judges, the county engineer, the CD director and his staff, and division chiefs.

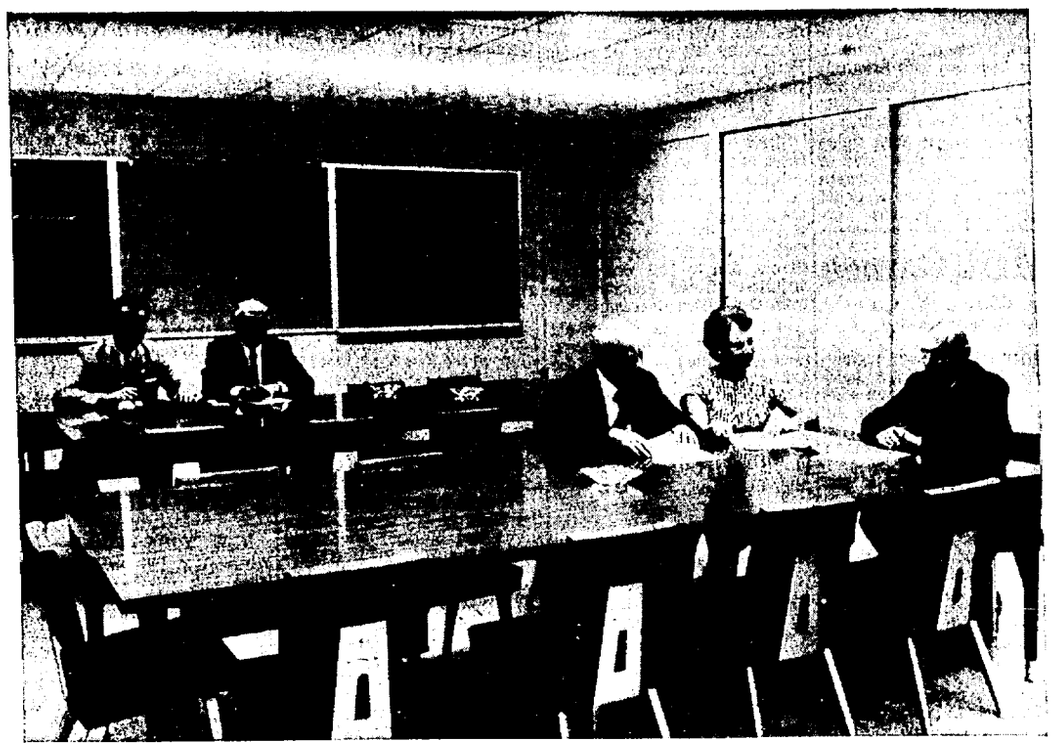
The division chiefs are local volunteers responsible for the following operations: communications, fire and rescue, supply and maintenance, survival education, flood and storm warnings, health and medical, welfare, chemical, biological and radiological warfare, security and intelligence, transportation, and the control center.

Also included in the 75 are liaisons for county agencies — with one representative from each group. Liaison people would come from the Salvation Army, Red Cross, Dept. of Employment Security, Boy and Girl Scouts, Civil Air Patrol, National Guard, Tobyhanna Army Depot, U.S. Dept. of Agriculture Defense Board, U. S. Postal Dept., State Game Commission, State Police, State Dept. of Forests and Waters, State Dept. of Health, and the State Dept. of Highways.

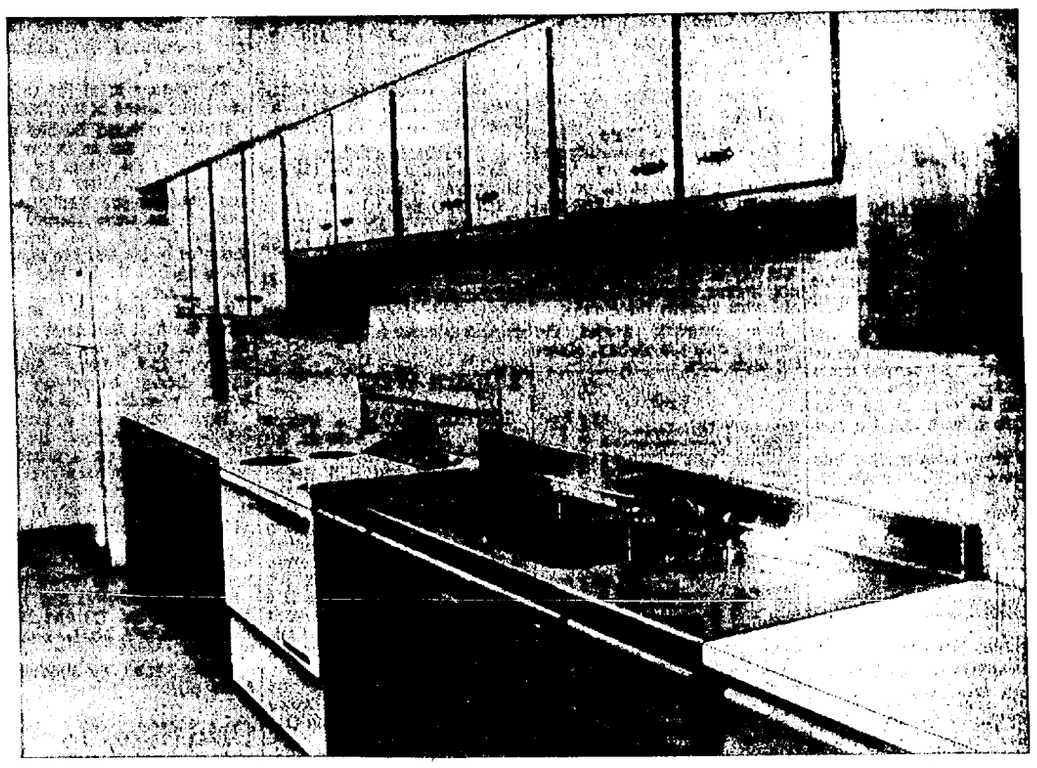
Also, some volunteers who coordinate the following activities: registration, communications, first aid, engineering, feeding, eating and sleeping.

That's just about the story of the new basement and the CD plans for enemy attack.

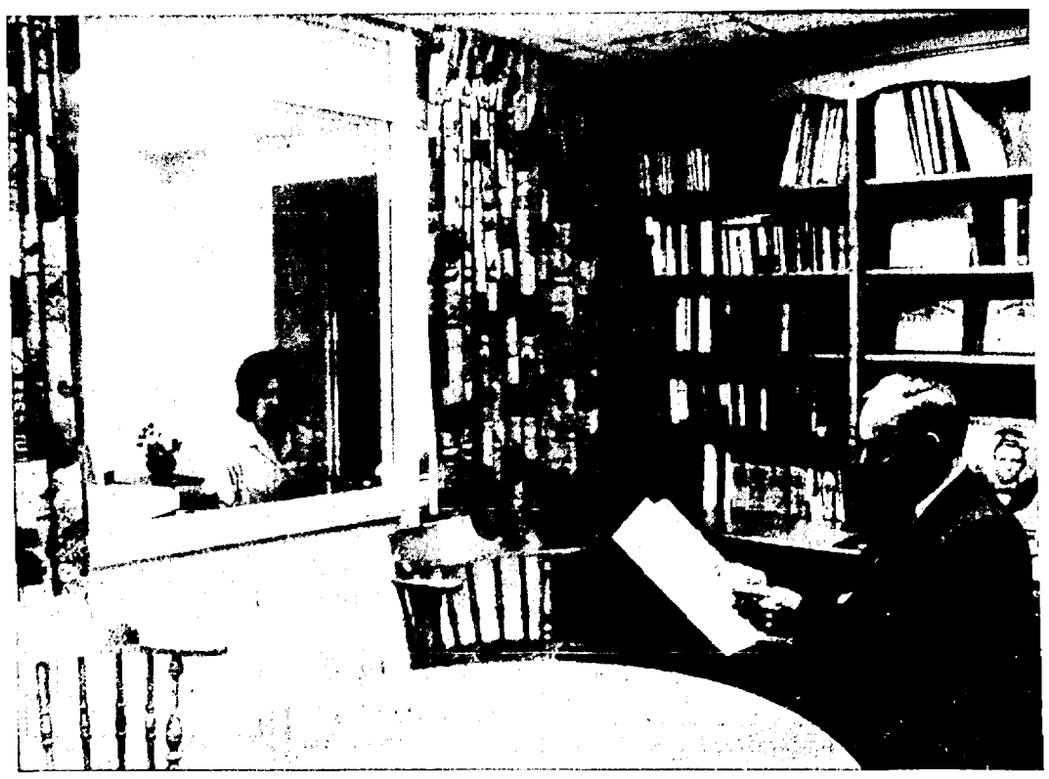
Even if the enemy doesn't attack, the county has itself a nice group of offices.



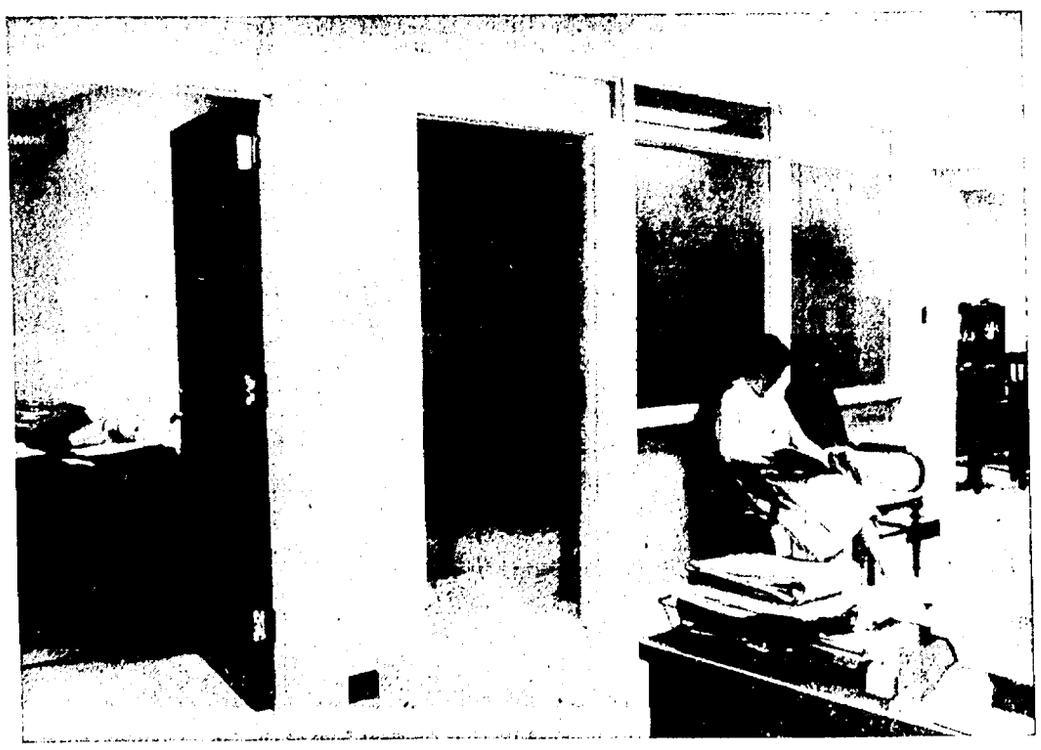
CONFERENCE ROOM—Modern conference room has table seating for 24 people. It is main Civil Defense office. Seated at tables are (l. to r.) commissioner Stuart Pipher; county solicitor Russell Mervine; CD director Marvin Abel; Deputy Director for Administration Mrs. Catherine Miller; President Judge Fred W. Davis, member of county CD council.



CIVIL DEFENSE KITCHEN—Spanking new kitchen is a feature of the renovated courthouse basement. Electric stove and refrigerator freezer are the main equipment. Six tables and wooden cabinets are the rest of the furnishings. Sink tops are stainless steel, formica lines the counters. Kitchen would be used for feeding in emergency.



PROBATION OFFICE—Henry McCool, probation officer for juvenile boys, scans a folder in his office. Kathy Williams, secretary, is behind glass partition. McCool decorated office with home-like furniture to lessen the austerity of common probation offices. He hopes atmosphere will help him to "get through" to delinquent boys.



COUNTY SCHOOL OFFICES—These are the offices of the county Superintendent of Schools. Mrs. Harriet Carson, secretary, flips through school literature. On right is John Litts' office—he's the superintendent. In the middle is Walter Sebring's office, assistant to Litts. A workroom and mimeograph room is at right.

SAFE AT HOME—Dave Patella of VFW slides home safely during yesterday's championship game in Monroe County Babe Ruth League. Catcher is John McConnell of the Exchange Club. The Exchangers won, 12-6.

Exchange Club Captures Babe Ruth Championship

STROUDSBURG — The Exchange Club rapped out nine hits—five of them for extra bases—to gain a 12-6 triumph over the VFW yesterday to win the championship of the Monroe County Babe Ruth League.

The winners poured across five runs in the top of the first inning to lead all the way. They added two in the second, one in the third and two each in the fifth and seventh rounds as the game was never in doubt from the outset.

The VFW whittled the 5-0 lead to 5-2 in the bottom of the first but trailed by an 8-3 count after the first three innings.

John McConnell and Ted Labadie each collected two hits for the Exchangers and drove in two runs. McConnell, who slammed one pitch for a triple, also scored three times.

Labadie, Caretta and Rich Yost all doubled for the winners, while Wilder also tripled, in addition to McConnell's three-bagger.

Stars At Plate

Dave Patela, the starting and losing pitcher for the VFW, starred at the plate. He poled a two-run homer in the fifth and also poked a double, chalking up two RBIs and scoring three runs. Al Cramer enjoyed a perfect day at the plate for the losers, batting 3-for-3—all singles—and also scoring three runs.

John Ashcroft hurled the route to gain the victory, allowing eight hits.

Rodriguez Secures Western Golf Lead

CHICAGO (AP) — Jaunty Chi Chi Rodriguez, shaking off a three-week tournament slump, shot a 69 in the Western Golf Open Friday to capture the 36-hole lead by one stroke over Arnold Palmer.

The 120-pound Puerto Rican coupled 35-34 against Tam O'Shanter's frayed 36-35—71 par and pulled up to the halfway mark in the $50,000-plus meet at 133 — nine under regulation.

Casper Skids

Billy Casper, who shared the first round lead with Chi Chi at 64, skidded to 35-36 — 71 for 135.

Typifying the disrespect for Tam's par was Casper's comment:

"It was among the worst rounds I've ever played. I missed seven greens and dropped only two good putts—a 10-footer for par on the eighth and a 20-footer for a birdie on 17."

Most attention went to the stampede of defending champion Palmer, who banged out a 32-34—66 for 134. There wasn't a bogey on his card as he fashioned five birdies and the rest pars.

Other siege guns moving into range were Don Massengale, 27-year-old pro from Jacksboro, Tex.; Pete Fleming of Hot Springs, Ark., and the steady veteran, Jay Hebert.

Barber Clips Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Barber, with a late inning assist by Harvey Haddix, won his third straight over New York as the Baltimore Orioles blanked the Yankees 2-0 Friday night and recaptured the American League lead.

The victory lifted the Orioles one game ahead of the Yankees.

Haddix relieved Barber with two out and two on in the seventh, ended the threat by striking out pinch hitter Phil Linz and checked the Yankees the rest of the way. Barber had pitched four-hit and three-hit victories in his last two appearances against the Yanks.

Adair Homers

Brooks Robinson singled home the first Baltimore run in the first inning off loser Jim Bouton, 12-9. Jerry Adair's eighth inning homer off Bill Stafford completed the scoring.

Haddix worked out of jams in the last two innings. He got Mickey Mantle on a grounder for the last out in the eighth after Roger Maris' triple and stranded two runners in the ninth by fanning pinch hitter Pedro Gonzalez.

Phils Acquire Frank Thomas

PHILADELPHIA (AP — The Philadelphia Phillies acquired veteran power hitter Frank Thomas from the New York Mets Friday for three minor leaguers in a deal the Phils' brass views as "pennant insurance."

The Phils gave up Wayne Graham, a .305 hitting outfielder-third baseman with Arkansas in the Pacific Coast League, and two other players to be delivered by Aug. 12 and Oct. 31.

General Manager John Quinn is no stranger to this game of so-called pennant insurance deals. The boss of the National League-leading Phillies acquired Red Schoendienst for Milwaukee in 1957 from the New York Giants and the slick infielder sparked the Braves to the pennant.

Right-Handed Power

Now he finds his Phillies in vital need of right-handed power that has been beating the predominently left - handed hitting Phils in recent weeks. So, he reached out and grabbed Thomas, a right-handed slugger who has hit 275 career home runs.

There have been other notable cases of mid- or late-season acquisitions that have meant pennant. The New York Yankees are past masters of this maneuver. They did it in 1949 when they got Johnny Mize from the Giants, and in 1951 when they acquired pitcher Johnny Sain from the Boston Braves.

In addition to the 27-year-old Graham, who has hit 11 home runs and batted in 56 runs for Arkansas, the Mets apparently will get pitcher Gary Kroll, a right-hander the Phillies have placed on waivers to make room for Thomas. Kroll appears to be the player marked for Aug. 12 delivery.

PMBL Games Set Sunday

STROUDSBURG —The front-running Stroudsburg A's, holding a precarious one-game edge over Kunkletown in the Pocono Mountain Baseball League, entertain Bowmanstown tomorrow at Lim's Field, Stroudsburg.

Also highlighting the league action will be the Bushkill-Kunkletown clash at Kunkletown.

The A's remained in first place last Sunday by trimming Saylorsburg while Kunkletown tenaciously stayed on their heels by defeating the Stroudsburg Poconos. The A's currently sport a 13-4 record, while Ktown is one game behind with a 12-5 mark.

Bushkill last week fell to third place by losing to Bowmanstown in an upset. But the Bushkill club can regain a share of second place tomorrow by downing K-town.

Reeders, which is currently tied for third with Bushkill, entertains Saylorsburg, while the Poconos travel to Gilbert for a meeting with West End in other action.

All games start at 2 p.m.

Chisox Blank Bosox

CHICAGO (AP) — Ray Herbert blanked the Boston Red Sox on five hits and drove in both of the game's runs Friday in helping the Chicago White Sox snap a three-game losing streak with a 2-0 victory.

A veteran right-hander, who lost a month this season while on the disabled list, collected his fifth victory against three losses. Ed Connolly suffered the loss, his eighth against two victories and his fourth to Chicago.

Herbert's decisive blow came in the sixth when Ron Hansen opened with a single and after two were out, Jerry McNertney singled Hansen to second. Herbert then lined a single to left, scoring Hansen.

The pitcher delivered the other run in the eighth with a squeeze bunt that brought home Hansen.

Thomas Slugs Phillies To 9-4 Victory

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frank Thomas, an original New York Met who was traded to the Philadelphia Phils before the game, socked a double and single and batted in two runs in his debut with the Phils Friday night in a 9-4 victory over the Mets.

Sent to the Phillies on waivers for three minor league players, Thomas also started a double play in the seventh after the Phils had rallied for four runs in the sixth to break open a 4-4 game.

Earlier, the Phillies built a 4-0 lead in the first on a double by Cookie Rojas, a run-scoring single by John Callison, Thomas' double scoring Callison and Alex Johnson's double.

The Mets scored a pair in the fourth on Ray McMillan's two-run single, and another pair in the fifth on Joe Christopher's 11th home run, his fifth against Philadelphia.

The loss dropped the Giants 2½ games behind the National League-leading Phillies, who whipped the New York Mets 9-4. Third-place Cincinnati remained four games back.

Young Billy McCool pitched the last three innings and held the Giants to two runs, including Jim Hart's ninth inning homer.

Frank Robinson homered for the Reds in the second. Steve Boros and Maloney singled in runs in the fifth. Robinson singled and scored on John Edwards' single in the seventh, and Robinson doubled home the last run in the ninth.

The pro football exhibition season shifts into high gear this weekend with seven games Saturday night and three Sunday afternoon.

The actual kickoff of the exhibition prelude to what promises to be exciting regular seasons in the National and American football leagues came Friday night at Chicago.

That was the annual All-Star game at Soldier Field which pitted the NFL champion Chicago Bears against the College All-Stars.

Weekend Highlight

The return to action by Paul Hornung, star Green Bay halfback after one year's suspension for betting on games, highlights the weekend. He will play with the Packers against the St. Louis Cardinals at New Orleans Saturday night. His performance is expected to provide a clue to whether the Packers can regain the NFL championship from the Bears.

Other Saturday night NFL games pit the Baltimore Colts against the Philadelphia Eagles at Hershey, Pa., the Detroit Lions against the Washington Redskins at Charlotte, the New York Giants, Eastern Conference champs, at Minnesota Vikings and the Dallas Cowboys at Los Angeles Rams. On Sunday the Cleveland Browns are at the San Francisco 49ers. The Pittsburgh Steelers are idle.

AFL Action

In the American League the champion San Diego Chargers play at home Saturday night against the Denver Broncos while at Tampa, Fla. the New York Jets tangle with the Buffalo Bills.

On Sunday in the AF it's the Houston Oilers at Boston Patriots and the Kansas City Chiefs at Oakland Raiders.

The regular season opens Sept. 12 in both leagues.

Bulletin

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Wade threw two touchdown passes through the College All-Stars porous air defense and scored once in a 28-17 victory for the Chicago Bears who trailed at half time.

After the collegians had excited the big crowd of 64,000 at Soldier Field by taking a 10-7 lead at the half, the defending champions of the National Football League took charge in the second half.

Charlie Taylor, a speedy runner and option passer from Arizona State, and George Mira, the fine quarterback from Miami (Fla.), thrilled the fans with their exciting play in this annual game sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

She won the high jump, broad jump, shot put and 200-meter dash and finished fourth in the 80-meter hurdles.

Pennsylvania Vs. Jersey

Waring Golf Playoff Set For Monday

SHAWNEE — It's Pennsylvania against New Jersey for the Fred Waring junior golf championship Monday at Shawnee Inn.

Tony Valentine, a 15-year-old Philadelphian, and 16-year-old Russell Helwig of Bloomfield, N.J., will meet in an 18-hole medal playoff starting at 1 p.m.

The two tied for first place in Wednesday's fourth annual tournament by shooting even par 72s.

Valentine shot a blistering 3-under-par 33 on the new white nine, carding four birdies and one bogey. But the Philly golf wizard skidded to a 3-over-par 39 on the blue nine for his 72.

Helwig, who is employed at a driving range during the summer in his home town of Bloomfield, matched par figures with 36 on each nine. The Jersey lad made up for three bogeys by firing three birdies.

The tourney attracted nearly 200 players from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Maryland, Washington, D.C., and Texas. Ages ranged from 8 to 17.

Janice Doane, a petite 15-year-old golfer from Windsor, N.Y., toured the 18 holes with an 86 to capture first place in the girls championship. She competed against 34 others.

Monday's playoff will be open to the public.

BILL BOORMAN, golf pro at Shawnee Inn, prepares for the Tony Lema Thunderbird golf exhibition at Glen Brook Country Club next Friday. He says the Champagne Kid will "have to work to win."

Boorman Eyes Thunderbird Exhibition

Shawnee Pro: Lema Must 'Work To Win'

SHAWNEE — Champagne Tony Lema will "have to work to win" when he competes next Friday in the Thunderbird golf exhibition at Glen Brook Country Club.

These were the words of Bill Boorman, Shawnee Inn's new golf pro, who will be among three area pros competing against Lema. The other two are Paul Patten, Glen Brook pro, and Hal Dymond of Scranton CC.

Boorman, never over-confident but a consistent golfer, says he is "ready for Lema."

Switched Fields

A petroleum engineer graduate of the University of Houston, Boorman has switched fields from salesman to golf pro. He had seven years sales experience with a firm manufacturing oil field supply equipment.

Asked why he made the switch after establishing himself well in the oil industry, Bill replied:

"For many years I had a close, personal friendship with golf professionals — particularly with Jimmy Demaret — and I always thoroughly enjoyed golf.

"Right Move"

"I gave thorough consideration to this change of vocation for quite some time and, once the decision was made, I never had any doubts that the move was anything but right for me."

Married to the former Donna Brooks of Denver, Colo., Bill joined Fred Waring's establishment this year in April. The Boormans have three children—a son, Mike, 13, and two daughters, Mindy, 12, and Keeli, 6.

"We all love the Poconos," says Boorman, "and all of us hope that this is our permanent home."

Turned Pro

A former football player, Boorman participated on the gridiron in high school, college, and also several years while serving in the Navy. At the same time, he was consistent on the golf course and started competing in amateur tournaments while still a teenager. He turned professional in January, 1960.

Although he usually tours the Shawnee course in par-72 over 18 holes, he says he has no designs to tour the pro circuit, claiming family considerations come first while noting he is "very happy" with his present job.

He speaks with confidence concerning the Lema exhibition. Although he says he has not been doing any "special training," he does plan to practice regularly on the Glen Brook course with Patten in an effort to "gain an edge" for the match.

In Good Form

Bill says he lives moderately, works and plays hard, and believes that his present physical condition—plus intensive practice the next few days—will put him in good form for the competition.

The exhibition is sponsored by the Ford Dealers' Assn. for the benefit of the General Hospital of Monroe County.

One thing is certain about Boorman's appearance in the match. If he wins, there will be no champagne flowing. As he puts it (while grinning broadly):

"I get along fine with newspaper and sports reporters, but I plan no champagne give-away for the press if I win."

A replica of the Sturbridge Lion, the first railroad locomotive ever to run in America, is in Honesdale. Imported from England in 1829, it inspired the railroad industry to open a route to the West.

Stoneham Denies Ouster Of Dark

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Horace Stoneham, owner of the San Francisco Giants has denied reports that he plans to fire Alvin Dark as manager.

Stoneham denied "all reports that a managerial change is contemplated."

At the same time, he said he feels that Dark's reply to a New York newspaper story quoting the manager as downgrading the ability and intelligence of Negro and Latin American players "has been very generally accepted."

Stoneham called the story "exaggerated and distorted."

Asked why he waited two days to deny reports that Dark would be fired, Stoneham said in a conference telephone call to baseball writers traveling with the Giants:

"Wanted To Wait"

"I wanted to wait until you got away from New York and that atmosphere.'

The writers are with the team in Cincinnati.

Dark held a news conference before Tuesday's game in New York to deny quotes attributed to him by Stan Isaacs, a columnist for the Long Island daily Newsday.

Isaacs has stood firm behind the story.

Also on Tuesday, Associated Press sports writer Joe Reichler quoted an unidentified source within the Giants management as saying Dark would be fired, possibly before the team returned to San Francisco Aug. 14.

Roman Brother, Dandy K. In Varied Race Program

Match Mongo and Gun Bow in one race, put Dandy K. and Roman Brother together in another and throw in such high class 2-year-olds as Bold Lad and Time Tested and you have the makings of right fair Saturday horse racing program.

Mongo, from Montpelier Farm and Gun Bow, ace of the Gedney Farm, take on three lightweights in the 1⅛ miles of the $50,000-added Whitney Stakes at Saratoga. Cecil Carmine's Dandy K. and Roman Brother, the mighty mite from Harbor View Farm, head a field of 10 in the $100,000-added Arlington Park Classic.

Short-Priced Entry

Bold Lad, from Wheatley Stable, and Ogden Mills Phipps' Time Tested, both trained by W. C. Winfrey, form the short-priced entry in the field of nine 2-year-olds named Friday for the six-furlong $102,575 Sapling at Monmouth Park.

Mongo and Gun Bow pick up 130 pounds each for a race that could help clear the handicap division title picture. Gun Bow has won five races, all stakes, in 10 starts this year but bowed to Mongo in their two head-on clashes. In his last start, the Gedney ace ran 1¼-mile Brooklyn Handicap in 1:59 3-5 for the fastest clocking in New York history.

Four Victories

Mongo's four victories in seven starts this year also have been in stakes, with the most recent being the Monmouth Handicap. Delta Judge, four-for-four in spring races, and the entry of Sunstruck and Third Martini round out the field.

This is Roman Brother's second invasion of the Chicago area this year. Late in June he wound up second to Dandy K. in the rich Chicagoan.

The Classic field also includes such well rated West Coast Invaders as Real Good Deal and Close By; Lt. Stevens, sprinting sensation from the East, and Toshmah, champion 2-year-old filly of 1963. With 10 starters the Classic will gross $114,000.

Bold Lad, a son of Bold Ruler, goes into the Sapling with a record of four victories, including two stakes triumphs. He ran second in his two others. Time Tested won the Dover and the Great American.

Only Native Charger, Sadair and perhaps Tibidabo are given any chance of breaking up the Bold Lad-Time Tested monopoly as Monmouth ends its season.

Horse Show Set For Harrisburg

HARRISBURG (AP) — The 19th Pennsylvania National Horse Show to be held at the Farm Show Arena in Harrisburg Oct. 17-24 will offer $34,000 in prizes, sponsors announced Friday.

Angels Lead In Softball

NEWFOUNDLAND— The Angels of the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Athletic Assn. men's softball league are leading the pack following first-half play with an unblemished 4-0 record.

Promised Land is second with a 3-1 mark, followed by South Sterling (2-2, Greentown (1-3) and Newfoundland (0-4).

Danney Villanueva of Los Angeles holds the 1963 National Football League record of most punts—81. Villanueva's total is six less than his league high of 87 in 1962. The record for a season is 92 by Howard Maley of the Boston Yanks in 1947.

Social Security Benefits May Block Health Care

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., voiced fear yesterday that a pending increase in Social Security benefits may block indefinitely any hopes for adequate health care for the elderly.

Ribicoff told the Senate Finance Committee that the House-approved 5 per cent boost in retirement, survivor and disability payments will give only relatively meager benefits but the cost of financing them may foreclose a Social Security health plan for years to come.

Anthony J. Celebrezze, who succeeded Ribicoff as secretary of welfare, said he would favor dropping the increased benefits in favor of a health-care program for the over-65s. But, he added, if that can't be done, he'd go along reluctantly with the pending bill because "these people need something"

Ribicoff said the increase in benefits will be as little as 80 cents a month in some cases but under the program set up to finance the changes the tax on employes and employers ultimately will reach 9.6 per cent.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — [illegible] to the [illegible] upon [illegible] your life's [illegible] [illegible] to make changes [illegible] of unexpected circumstances, [illegible] from 30 especially.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Can you improve some facet of everyday life and your career [illegible]? It would facilitate matters next week. But do not forget rest, relaxation.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Mixed influences. You can get off on the wrong foot if you don't mind your "P's and Q's." Prove that you would attempt to share short with others.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Forget annoying situations of the past. This day is here for your pleasure; grasp it with [illegible] and mold it in a helpful pattern. [illegible] problems.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Hold the fort against intruders who merely pry and probe without good purpose, but don't let "natives" get you down. Concentrate on activities that are salutary and refreshing.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Wait until sure, then move gradually toward your objectives; speed up tempo if necessary. But, in any event, don't become over - anxious. Easy does it now.

YOU BORN TODAY have a dynamic personality; are highly emotional, a witty entertainer. Shun reckless, don't make hasty decisions and curb a tendency to haughtiness; once you have conquered such faults such as those mentioned, there is no limit to the lovable you can attain. You share your goods with others readily, have great pride in family and, once self - mastered, could become an outstanding executive, respected by employers and employees alike. The Leoite usually enjoys sports, certainly does savor luxuries. Many business leaders, scientists, lecturers, critics and doctors have been Leo born. Birthdate of: Sir Godfrey Kneller, painter.

New Play Set For Gristmill

ANDOVER, N. J. — Gristmill Playhouse in Andover will open "A Taste of Honey" on Tuesday. The play, written by Shelagh Delaney, an 18-year-old English girl, runs through Aug. 15.

Non-sentimental and realistic episodes on a controversial theme center around Jo, a working class adolescent girl, and her relationship with an aesthetic art student, a Negro sailor, her fun-loving, boozing mother, and her mother's new husband.

Helen Fry, who plays the mother, has a wealth of theatre background, and has played the lead in "Bad Seed," "Glass Menagerie," and "Hasty Heart."

The Daily Telegram said of the play, "A remarkable page of theatre history has been written."

3 Firms Interested In Poconos

STROUDSBURG — In the issue of a periodical bulletin, the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce has given its members a status report on industries interested in coming to the Poconos.

The bulletin notes that after a lull of three years, the Oil City Glass Co. is surveying a 30-acre site north of the Mehl plant. It would provide 200 jobs but the committment is not made yet.

The Great Lakes Carbon Co. is also considering a move to the area. It would provide 200 jobs to manufacture roofing insulation.

The Grief Brothers Cooperage Corp. has inquired about an available 6,000 to 7,000 square foot building. A subsidiary would produce about 80,000,000 wire coat hangers yearly.

Also, a paint company from New Jersey and two other prospects have been contacted.

New members in 1964 include:

All - American Realty Co., Inc.; Beaver House; Bellaire Log Cabins; Blue Ridge Broadcasters, Inc.; Elmer D. Christine; Circle Motel; Glenbrook, Inc.; Hamlen Flying Service; Indian Mountain Lake; Lake Naomi Corp.; Marshalls Creek Mobile Home Sales; Pocono View Motel; Stanley B. Rader; Carl Reiche; Wiss Motor Co.

Crackdown On Improvers

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners are going to crack down on property owners and contractors not reporting property improvements to the county assessor's office.

A notice posted in the courthouse indicates such incidents have been reported to C. A. (Phiz) Nauman, chief county assessor.

The notice points out that under a 1952 state law, property owners and contractors who do not report property improvements can be fined up to $50 for each offense.

Inside Space For Exhibit Sold Out

BANGOR — A complete sell-out of inside exhibit space for the Blue Valley Farm Show, August 19-22, was announced by Rocco Drago, business manager, last night at the Bangor Exchange Club clambake that traditionally ushers in the final two-weeks' preparation for the club's major project.

Still available, Drago revealed, is some automobile tent display space and plenty of open-air locations for commercial exhibitors interested in contacting the upwards of 25,000 spectators that annually attend the four-night show.

More than 150 clambakes were served to members and guests last night by William Price and a corps of assistants. Arrangements were in charge of Evan Hughes and Ronald Valetta, the former substituting for the hospitalized co-chairman, Samuel Hicks. Among the guests were Exchangeites from Easton, Bethlehem and Pen Argyl.

Entertainment

Entertainment attractions at the Farm Show will start Wednesday evening, August 19, with the several hundred entry Pet Parade at 6:30 p.m., followed by evening appearances of TV's Bertie the Bunyip.

Scalzo, the magician, coming direct from daily appearances at the New York World's Fair, will highlight the Thursday evening show.

A teen-age Dance Contest, Friday night, will be accompanied by Portland's Rusty Reimer and The Satellites.

The ever-popular Willie Meyers and company, Lehigh Valley radio artists, provide the musical entertainment on Saturday evening, August 22.

STRAUSSLE — In sad and loving memory of a dear daughter, Dorothea K. Strausslé, who passed away August 8, 1963.
When we look upon your picture
Sweet memories we recall,
Of a face so full of sunshine
And a smile for everyone,
As we loved you so we miss you,
Bringing many silent prayers and tears.

A NEW ROAD

"Let's find a new road!" That's a game we play often when we take a family ride.

These little journeys of discovery have led us to some beautiful, serene sections of our community that we never would have seen if we'd stayed on the busy highway.

At times, life itself can seem like a crowded, noisy highway. The years rush by . . . we promise ourselves that some day we'll take the time to look around us and try to understand where we are and why . . . but worldly interests tend to fill every minute to the brim. We wonder why the pleasures that we work so hard to obtain fail to bring us happiness . . . and we sense that life has a deeper meaning, if we could find it.

The Church can guide you and your family to a new, wonderful road. Discover the warm fellowship, the renewed courage, the refreshing peace of mind that grow from membership in your neighborhood church.

Philadelphia Orchestra Starts New Era Tuesday

SHAWNEE — When the Philadelphia Orchestra and Eugene Ormandy appear next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at the Shawnee Inn they will be beginning a new era in the orchestra's history.

The August 11 date will be the earliest opening date in the orchestra's 64 year history. The Shawnee concerts will also open the longest season in the orchestra's illustrious operation.

The Philadelphia Orchestra has never performed many outdoor concerts. The Robin Hood Dell concerts in Philadelphia are performed by ninety members of the Philadelphia Orchestra out of doors.

However, the concerts are not sponsored by the Orchestra Association and the men are not engaged through the Association but rather on an individual basis. Several of the key first chair personnel do not participate in the Dell concerts.

105 Members

Appearing in the Poconos will be the entire 105 member Philadelphia Orchestra — not a select group nor an orchestra augmented with temporary musicians.

When Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra appear at Shawnee Inn they will be performing in the finest portable shell available and with the most excellent sound amplification equipment manufactured.

The Pocono Art Center, sponsor of the concerts, is most emphatic in demanding that the sound approach as nearly as possible the sound of the Philadelphia Orchestra in a good auditorium. Four microphones and eight speakers will be used to amplify the sound if necessary. If the evening is quiet and without wind it is anticipated that no sound amplification will be necessary.

Complete information regarding the concerts may be obtained from the Pocono Art Center, Shawnee.

Adds To Holdings

NEW YORK (AP) — Automation Industries Inc., an electronics firm, says it has bought Cash Sperry Rail Service of Danbury, Conn., for an undisclosed sum. Cash Sperry, a division of Howe Sound Co., tests railroad track.

Local Spree Ends In Jail

STROUDSBURG — Mathew E. Glinka of Philadelphia is being held in Monroe County Jail on a charge of public intoxication following his arrest at 3:50 p.m. by Stroudsburg police.

Justice of the Peace Floyd W. Kellogg said a hearing will be held today.

Monroe Library Termed 'Magnificent' By Tourist

STROUDSBURG—The following article is a reprint of a column that apeared recently in the Suburban, a newspaper in Collingswood, N. J. The writer, Edith Belz, relates her experience in the Monroe County Library.

Today I spent an hour or two in the library in Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania. I realize this is not exactly news but the Stroudsburg library is a little out of the ordinary.

It is on the main street and I had a little difficulty locating it. Everybody I asked said, "It is over there." I looked "over there" but all I saw was an immense house which I am quite sure was built in 1900. I crossed the street and saw a small sign which told me that it really was "over there."

The man who had built the house had left it in his will to the town in memory of his wife and hereby hangs a tale because I learned from the librarian that his wife still lives on the second floor of this mansion. When I appeared confused she informed me that the gentleman had had several wives!

The house made a magnificent library. I was amazed how easily it had been turned into an immense reading place. There had been very few changes and in every room I could almost see that family who had inhabited this cupolaed house.

The rooms were filled with the people who had inhabited them originally. There was a butler's pantry which the librarian told me had been fitted with a marble sink and gold plated faucets which one member of the family had removed to put into a home of his own as a conversation piece.

It wasn't at all difficult to picture the drawers in the pantry filled with linen and silver but I doubt if the butler or the maids would have understood the books stacked in that section because they were devoted to the French Impressionists and American modern art.

There were shutters on all the windows. You know the type. Heavy dark shutters which could be closed against the winter winds and cool off the rooms when the sun was hot.

The librarian told me that the children's library had been a very charming small sitting room where the lady of the house had entertained.

This library seemed just right. The librarian's desk was in the entrance hall. There were immense fireplaces in some of the rooms but they were blocked out with book shelves. I thought how nice it would have been if they had kept the fireplace open and built a fire now and then. The colored glass in some of the windows spelled 1900.

I liked this library. The combination of the sturdy old house and rows and rows of book shelves seemed just right.

I suppose a modern building would have more advantages but this old house invited readers. It was crowded when I was there and everybody who came in seemed very much at home.

There were many quiet corners. There was a friendliness about the place which means much in a Public Library.

Elizabeth N. Kane, librarian, reminded all county residents that the library at 913 Main St., is open daily, Monday through Friday. The adult section is open from noon until 8 p.m. and the junior section from 2 to 5 p.m. Both sections are open Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon.

Mrs. Kane said the library is free to all county residents. She said all applications from school-age children must be signed by a parent.

Airport Authority Okays Charter Service Application

MT. POCONO — R. LeRoy Dengler, chairman of the Mt. Pocono Airport Authority, said the group had approved the application of Skylane Associates to operate a charter air service at Mt. Pocono Airport.

Action came at the authority's monthly meeting this week. Members also approved issuance of new bids for "T" hangers and a utility hanger, Dengler said.

He reported that more than 100 large executive planes have used the airport this year.

The authority also heard plans for the second annual test of effective use of the general aviation resources in time of emergency. The training program is sponsored by Civil Defense.

Mt. Pocono is one of four airports in the northeastern United States to be chosen for the exercises.

Dengler said pilots and owners of private craft are being asked to contact their county Civil Defense director and volunteer to participate.

Out of pocket expenses for the exercise are Federal tax deductible, he said.

The practice airlifting of supplies will be conducted Oct. 3 and 4 during daylight hours.

Trapshoot Sunday
